2 Near Death, 8 Injured In 2 County Crashes

9 HURT NORTH OF CITY AS 3 CARS COLLIDE

Traffic Tied Up Nearly Hour on Route 42; Hundreds Rush to Scene.

4 STILL IN HOSPITAL

Akron Woman Injured as Car Overtakes South of Lexington.

Two persons lay near death in General hospital today, and eight others were injured in two accidents in widely separated parts of the county in a 12-hour period last night and this morning.

An accident in which the driver lost control of his car in attempting to avoid a collision with a machine which was entering the highway from a side road on U. S. route 42, four and one-half miles south of Lexington, sent an aged Akron woman to the hospital shortly before noon today.

In Critical Condition.
The victim was Mrs. Ella Murray, 65, reported in critical condition from injuries to the head and chest. She was riding with Forrest Beall of Indianapolis. Both were en route to Beall's home there. They had left Akron this morning. Beall escaped injury.

State Highway Patrolman C. B.
Tieben said Beall told him that a car started to pull out of a side road in front of him and that to avoid striking the machine he struck the beam and lost control of his car, which rolled over, pinning the occupants inside.

They were extricated by motorists who brought Mrs. Murray to Mansfield.

Nine Hurt In Crash.
A three-car collision on U. S. route 42, one mile northeast of Mansfield last night, halted traffic on the highway for nearly an hour and injured nine persons.

One, a 22-year-old Galion girl, is in serious condition at General hospital. Three others are still in the hospital. Five were treated for minor injuries and released.

Miss Madeline Liston, 22, of Gal-ion, who suffered head injuries, was reported in "fair" condition by hospital attaches who said she would probably recover.

The other three at the hospital, suffering from severe body lacerations, are Mrs. Howard Baker, 31, wife of a Galion automobile dealer;
Mrs. L. E. Simons, 29, of Gal-ion, sister of Mrs. Baker, and Myrl Baker, 43, of Johnsville, her brother.

Five Released.

Those who were treated at the hospital last night for cuts and bruises and released were Howard Baker, 32, Galion automobile dealer, his brother-in-law, L. E. Simons, 31, Galion, Paul H. Kuhn, 26, of Crestline; Curtis McKean,
22, of Crestline, and Miss Dorothy Liston, 24, sister of Madeline.

'Did Everything I Could,' Ferguson Says On Pensions

With all hope of presidential intervention to assure payment of October old age pensions to 1,200 persons in Richland county and 110,000 others throughout Ohio, lost, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson returned to Columbus today, saying:

"I've done everything I can. I can only hope and pray."

According to M. W. Conley, Richland county head of the aid for the aged division, pension checks are due now. However, they have not been sent out, since the federal government has withheld its share of the money, charging irregularities in the state pension set-up.

Presidential Secretary Marvin McIntyre notified Ferguson yesterday that Mr. Roosevelt would not take a hand in the dispute between the Ohio administration and the federal social security board.

Washington that upon his return he would write "what I think" about civil service examinations ordered by Gov. Martin L. Davey for provisional employees of the state division of aid for the aged.
He charged that Davey ordered the provisional employees to take the examination and report to their department clerks so that the governor could appoint these employees before he leaves office.

High Time, Mr. Mayor, We'd Say

OSSINING, N. Y. (AP)—For 35 years, Village President
Howard Dunscomb has been a Republican—but no longer.
He's going to vote against the Republican county ticket in November, he said, because the county organization does not give "proper recognition to Ossining and certainly not to me as mayor."

For instance, he wrote William F. Bleakley, candidate for county executive, he's been trying to get a low auto license number for three years and every year he got only "the usual song and dance."

COUNCIL MOVES TO UNTANGLE HOUSE NUMBERS

Committee Acts After Survey Shows 3,347 Homes Have Wrong Addresses.

City council's street committee today had launched a campaign to correct the house numbers of more than 3,300 residences in Mansfield to conform with a city ordinance passed nearly a decade ago.

George Berg, chairman, explained that a recent field survey completed by WPA resulted in the finding of 3,347 residences wrongly numbered and 960 homes with no street addresses.

He said that WPA field workers had compiled a complete list of all the correct numbers in the city and that an appropriation of $100 would be asked to purchase supplies for notifying property owners of their correct numbers.

The committee proposes to inform every home of the correct number, ask that the change be made and then return a self-addressed card for verification, which in turn would be checked against data on file at the city building.

Based on Ordinance.

Glenn Weller, city-WPA engineer, who supervised the survey and compiled the data, said the new numbers were figured on the base line system set up by the ordinance.

The baseline system involves a numbering process calling for one number every 20 feet. The base lines in Mansfield are Park avenue and Main street.

Weller said the survey showed the northwest section of the city to be in the greatest need of new numbers. There are 1,339 homes with incorrect numbers there and 353 residences have none.

DISCOVER BODY

Rail Foremen Find Mangled Victim at Pavana.

Found along the Erie railroad tracks at Pavana early today by section foremen, the badly mangled body of a man about 55 years old remained unidentified this afternoon.

Coroner Hugh Winbiger said the man, who was shabbily dressed, apparently had fallen from a freight train sometime after midnight and was run over. The body was discovered by Edward Miller and James Stipp, section foremen,
as they went to work this morning.

The body was removed to the Jones funeral home where E. C.
Fuller, identification officer of the Mansfield police department, was to take fingerprints this afternoon.
There were no identification marks in the victim's clothing to establish identification.

WHO'S RIGHT?

Boys, Toy Automobile Provide Parking Motor Problems.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)— Police today mulled over the rights of Mr. Pedestrian vs. Mr.
Motorist.

High school boys dropped a nickel in a downtown parking meter, set up cots and a card tables and started a card game.
When traffic officers told them
the space was reserved for vehicles, the boys pointed to the coin in the meter, displayed a toy automobile and continued their game.

OHIO SALES MOVE UP

WASHINGTON (AP)—The department of commerce reported today that retail sales of 1169 Ohio stores increased 17 per cent in September over those of August, but still were 18 per cent under sales in September a year ago.

Why All This Fuss About Scarlett? Broadway Fills Role In Half-Hour

A Phone Call and Gotham Gets a 'Leading Lady'
In a Hurry.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Hollywood wasted a couple of years and a good many thousands without finding its Scarlett O'Hara, but when Broadway needed a Scarlett, a producer got on the telephone and 30 minutes later there was Helen Claire.

Clare Boothe's caustic "Kiss
The Boys Goodbye" is not, of course, a dramatization of Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With The Wind." But practically no attempt is made to veil the fact that it is a satirical story of the discovery of a modern Southern belle to play the film Scarlett.

The Cindy Lou Bethany of the play gets the job, too, and before the curtain falls there's no doubt in any one's mind that Cindy Lou, as portrayed by Miss Claire, deserves it.

Helen Claire has more southern background than a Cherokee rose, more charm than an Alabama moon. "She can throw a suit" (tantum tu) with feminine fury. And in defense of her honor, she can shoot a movie producer as convincingly as if he were a dam-yankee soldier on a foraging expedition and she were Scarlett O'Hara.

There's a reason for all this.
Miss Claire was born and "raised up" in Union Springs, Ala. A grandfather and several great uncles have tombstones there on which is written, "Killed in Action" in the Civil war.

At Virginia's Randolph Macon, Miss Claire got higher education,
her Phi Beta Kappa key for out-

Helen Claire in 'Kiss the Boys Goodbye.'

standing scholastic work, and her first taste of dramatics.

For eight years after that, she laid siege to Broadway. During that time she had the manifold experience of radio, small roles on the stage, the almost anonymous business of commenting for newsreels, and a year in Cincinnati with that astute director of stock companies, Stuart Walker.

About a year ago, the movies,
in their hunt for a Scarlett, got very warm. Anton Bundsmann, who accompanied Director

George Cukor on that much-heralded southland tour, remembered Miss Claire.

"I never saw myself as Scarlett O'Hara. The role I really felt and wanted to play was that of Melanie," says Miss Claire.

As is often the case, Hollywood having gotten close to the goal, called the game off. Helen Claire went on with radio and newsreels until Producer Brock Pemberton, needing a Scarlett O'Hara in modern dress, remembered—hit—she—had—done—on Broadway and called her in. The rest is boxoffice history.

TOKYO—Japan has protested to France against the transportation of war materials to China through Indo-China and has warned that she might take such measures as she felt necessary unless the supply line was closed, the foreign office disclosed today.

In protesting against the continued transportation of war materials through French Indo-China, the French government was asked to take effective measures to prevent such transport.

The supply line to China through French Indo-China is of increased

HANGS ON ROPE, RESCUES WOMAN

Fireman Saves Hospital Patient
Wedged In Window.

NEW YORK (AP)—A fireman swinging precariously at the end of a rope today held Marie Cla-mens, 35-year-old patient at the Regent Nursing home, by the legs for 20 minutes while other firemen cut through a fourth floor casement window to pull her to safety.

Somehow the woman had become wedged in the window and the fireman, Charles Pessoni, who was lowered from the roof, swung in position near her as she slowly slipped out of the narrow aperture.

Officials of the home learned of her plight through her frantic screams.

The Political Parade --- Hits Bricker 'Dare' In Pension Squabble

Berrodin, Ousted By Davey For Trying to Continue Payments, Backs Sawyer.

While Charles Sawyer, Democratic candidate for governor, and his Republican opponent, John W. Bricker, were speaking from the same platform in Youngstown last night, Henry J. Berrodin, former state old age pension chief, urged support of Sawyer in a radio address from Columbus, on the grounds that election of Sawyer would end the current squabble over pension payments.

Berrodin, who was dismissed by Gov. Martin L. Davey from his post as chief of the aid for the aged division because he agreed to comply with federal requirements in administration—which Davey opposed—charged that Bricker had asserted that the "federal government must not stop its payments to Ohio" and further challenged that it "dare not" stop them.

"In view of such a combative attitude the utter folly of any old age pensioner putting his faith in this dare-type candidate is only too apparent," Berrodin said.

Berrodin asserted that old age pensioners supporting Sawyer are "voting out all fear that they may be cut off or have their checks reduced or delayed."

TIRE COMPANY EXPANSION TO COST $150,000

City's Industrial Outlook Brightened for Second Time in 2 Days.

CONTINUES AT CAPACITY

Plant Head Sees Production at 100 Per Cent for at Least a Year.

Mansfield's industrial outlook, brightened yesterday's announcement of increased operations at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, was given further impetus today as the Mansfield Tire & Rubber company revealed a $150,000 expansion program.

At the same time George W.
Stephens, president of the tire company, said he was confident that his firm will operate at full production not only this winter but the entire year.

Employs 1,500.

The steel company called 100 men back to work next week and Stephens' announcement said the new addition will enable his plant to add more men when the project is completed. The company now employs about 1,500 and has been operating at capacity during the past year. It is the only major industry in the city that has not been affected by the 1938 depression.

Excavation work is under way for a two-story brick and steel building at the tire plant which will add approximately 40,000 square feet of floor space and house new manufacturing equipment.

Completion of the plant addition will enable the company to not only step up its production but provide employment for more workers.

The construction project is being handled by the plant officials and local labor is being employed on the job. H. B. Soulen, plant manager, said.

Ready by Feb. 1.

Two old buildings to the north of the main plant were razed to make way for the new structure which will be completed about Feb. 1.

New equipment to be installed will include several rubber mixing mills, a new banbury and additional calendar machinery.

Optimistic about the business outlook, Stephens said: "After reviewing the outlook in each of the NAMES SHERIFF

Lorain Board Picks Elyria Man for Graff's Post.

COLUMBUS (AP)—The secretary of state's office was notified today that Lorain County commissioners had named Carl Finegan of Elyria to succeed William F. Graff as Lorain county sheriff.
Fingan will serve an unexpired term ending the first Monday in January, 1941.

Graff, who resigned, will go on trial Nov. 9 on charge of operating a $30 bribe to permit operation of a house of prostitution in Lorain. He pleaded innocent on arraignment.

The charges against Graff grew out of a grand jury investigation which revealed that slot machine operators had paid Graff money to operate in Lorain county. Graff admitted receiving the money, but was granted immunity in that case because of his testimony before the grand jury.

SCHOOLS HERE IN 'SAME BOAT'

City May Become '2nd Dayton' With No Funds in Sight to Operate After Dec. 1.

With only enough funds in sight to operate another month, Mansfield schools today faced a situation similar to that in Dayton, Ohio, where 34,000 pupils were sent home this afternoon for a six weeks' forced vacation due to a lack of school funds.

Whether schools in Mansfield and in the rural sections of Richland county will continue to operate after Dec. 1 will depend on whether Gov. Martin L. Davey calls a special session of the state legislature to enact emergency legislation, educators said.

Supt. W. L. Miller of Mansfield schools announced several days ago that he will favor closing the city schools when funds are exhausted rather than ask teachers to work without pay or force the schools deeper in debt.

The Mansfield board already owes $51,000 on notes authorized by the state department of education which has been unable to pay its quarterly obligations in cash for the past two years.

Most of the county's rural districts have borrowed against anticipated receipts from the state foundation program, and the Madison township board still owes for a part of the textbooks purchased during the past year for use by pupils under the free textbook system, Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, said.

Closing of the Dayton schools today by the board of education brought varied reactions from pupils.

GIRL TAKES A HUSBAND AT 10

Child Becomes Bride of Coal Miner, 24, In Kentucky.

PRESTONSBURG, Ky. (AP)— Rosie Columbus has changed her child playthings for a husband.

Dr. L. B. Sheppard, Johnson county health officer, said today records in his office showed the girl was ten years old. She was married Monday to 34-year-old Fleming Tackett, a widowed coal miner.

The marriage license was obtained at the Floyd county courthouse here by the girl's mother, Mrs. Grace Columbus, who gave Rosie's age as 15. At Paintsville,
Dr. Sheppard said health office records showed the girl was born in Johnson county Feb. 12, 1928.
The Rev. W. G. Ratliff, employed as a coal mine blacksmith said he pronounced the marriage vows.

WARSAW, Poland (AP)— Germany tonight agreed to cancel its deportation order which would have dumped thousands of Polish Jews across the border into Poland, the foreign office said. The foreign office said Germany's decision was taken after negotiations between Germany and Poland.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—Marked for speedy deportation, more than 3,000 Jews, most of them
Poles, were rounded up in pre-dawn raids in major cities today as police suddenly opened a smashing campaign against Jews with allegedly faulty passports.

The anti-Jewish drive, which spread terror through ghettos and jammed police stations with bewildered men and weeping women and children, was described as a "measure of self-protection."

Several thousand Jews are scheduled to be "repatriated," chiefly to Poland. The Schlesische railway station in East Berlin swarmed with hundreds of men, women, and children awaiting trains to Poland.

In Berlin between 200 and 1,000 persons were arrested.

The Berlin seizures coincided with the arrest of 2,000 Polish Jews in Vienna during the night
Oct. 8 requiring Jews to surrender their passports within a fortnight.
First reports indicated that only foreign Jews were affected.

The arrests were carried out in rapid and dramatic fashion, beginning in the chill morning at 5 o'clock.

Heads of each family were aroused from their beds and peremptorily ordered to dress. Loaded into trucks, they were taken to police stations by the score, where all were held on suspicion of passport irregularities.

Long lines of Jewish women and children at the same time assembled outside police barracks, carrying suitcases and cardboard boxes, waiting for police examination papers.

Utilities Promise Program Costing Billions.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Heads of a dozen leading utilities companies announced "definite commitment" today to place immediate orders for power generating equipment for 1,000,000 kilowatts.
They said it was the "first step" in a program of expenditures estimated at a billion dollars a year for the next two years.

Floyd L. Carlisle of the Consolidated Edison company of New York said this would be approximately double the national outlays for the purpose in the last two years.

The commitments were given as a part of the administration's efforts to strengthen power facilities of the nation's strategic war material manufacturing centers.

Maybe in a really rational world international supremacy could be settled by championship football games.

After a careful look toward China it appears that the Filipinos are less interested in early "independence."

Congressmen who passed the wage-hour law are probably waiting with much interest to find out what it means.

Empire Steps Up Production.

SUCH news as that contained in yesterday's announcement that the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company is calling 100 men back to employment next week is heartening to those who realize the importance of industrial employment to the prosperity of Mansfield.

Whatever else it may be, Mansfield is primarily an industrial city, with its wholesale and retail businesses, its financial institutions, its professional services and its schools and churches largely dependent on the primary payrolls of factories for their support.

Mansfield has been fortunate in the soundness of its industrial development, particularly in the growth of small industries into larger ones, but there should be no minimizing of the importance of constant effort to encourage and hold present industries, as well as to secure new ones.

Under existing circumstances, in fact, it seems more essential to emphasize the importance of sincere community co-operation in giving every possible encouragement to enlarging operations of industries now located in Mansfield than in attempting to immediately add to the present roster.

Non-Partisan Park Commission.

AS NEARLY as can be learned, there is no element of opposition to the proposal to establish a public parks commission in Mansfield, which is to be voted on at the November 8 election.

Continued systematic development of Mansfield's public parks is a matter of considerable civic importance and there is general belief, among those who have studied the subject, that this can be best accomplished by non-partisan handling rather than being subjected to changing city administrations.

With an extensive park system along the west side of the city, and with other sectional parks, including rapidly developing Liberty park in the northeast district, it becomes increasingly necessary to carry through plans that can be depended upon to provide interested and capable supervision and a program of development that will be entirely free of partisan politics.

This change will involve no additional expenditure of public funds, as park commissioners will serve without compensation.

This proposal has already been accorded such general endorsement that a large favorable majority can be quite confidently anticipated—if each voter will be careful to mark the separate ballot provided for this purpose.

Undemocratic Booming.

AMERICANS appear to be taking up booming in a big way. Recently, at the debates between Senator Robert Bulkley of Ohio and Robert A. Taft, his opponent for that office in the coming election, there has been so much booming that both speakers have had to curtail their remarks and friends have even urged them to give up their debates.

It may be assumed that there are more people in these audiences who do not boo than there are boomers, but the latter are so persistent and noisy that they successfully hinder the speakers and ruin the evening for the others. The problem is more serious than that. In addition to being bad manners, booming is bad democracy.

It is important under our system of government to hear speakers who defend a course we oppose, for only so can the issue be thoroughly understood and decided on its merits. There is nearly always a question period these days following a lecture or debate. It would be better evidence of good sense to ask shrewd and pointed questions at that time, thus testing the speaker's own convictions, his ability to think fast and accurately and his knowledge of the subject.

Sports Put In Their Place.

HIGH school students need games and suitable exercises for health and education. Most people agree on that. In recent years, however, sports in the secondary schools have assumed too great competitive importance and high schools have imitated the worst features of college sports programs, with team members working at the games and the rest of the students acting only as spectators.

That system is being dropped now in New York schools in accordance with regulations made by the state department of education. Hereafter there are to be no more professional coaches. Athletic directors will be part of the teaching staff and their work will include the boy or girl who needs strengthening and building up quite as much as the ones that might excel in interschool contests.

As far as possible all students will participate in the athletic program, each following some form of sport according to his ability and interest. Much of the work will be done in class time, but 100 minutes a week of after-school recreation will be required.

This will no doubt result in less spectacular and frenzied football games on Saturday afternoon, but it should produce healthier boys and girls with better balance between sports and study.

Honest With the Blind.

ELEVEN candy and news stands which have been operated by blind persons in public buildings for one year have proved the general honesty of one American city. A check of the year's operations by the business manager of the local Society for the Blind found that more than 1,500,000 sales had been made. In only one of these did anyone cheat the blind operator. In that case a lead quarter was used to pay for a purchase.

One "meanest person" in one and a half million speaks well for the general run of human kind. It is possible, too, that the lead quarter was handed over the counter by an unob-servant man or woman who did not suspect it was counterfeit.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — A notable thing about Russian propaganda trials is the way the witnesses talk and talk about their own misdeeds.

A notable thing about the Dies investigation into the activities of such "un-American" elements as nazis and reds is the way some of the witnesses talk and talk about their own carryings on.

Of course in the case of the American hearings, no one is going to shoot anybody at sunrise or send anybody off to Siberia. But they are fascinating, just the same.

The most recent witness we have heard is Clyde Morrow of Detroit who told the committee he had been a communist organizer and strike leader but wasn't any more. To prove his case he showed his communist passbook, with the stamps showing the several years he had paid dues since joining in 1932. His communist name was C. Main. Communists, he said, take special names from gravestones or telephone books.

He Gave 'Em Names.

MORROW named over all the communists he knew, in connection with Detroit labor troubles, and added a lot of names of individuals, including a dozen or so Detroit teachers, who he said had walked along the street with communists, or had attended lectures by prominent communist speakers, or in other ways had caused him to think they might be communists.

Previous red-and-nazi hearings in the House have been much like the present one. Witnesses are invited to pour out their testimony without cross examination.

At one point Mr. Morrow began to read a long typewritten statement purporting to be a summary of strike activities in Detroit written by another communist.

"How do you know that is an authentic statement?" asked Rep. Dies of Texas, chairman of the committee.

"I KNOW it is," Morrow said. "Proceed," said Mr. Dies.

It's Catch-as-Catch-Can.

TO REPORTERS trained to the ways of courts, the hearing sometimes seems a fantasy. Congressmen can't be punished for can't witnesses before congressional committees, so almost anything goes, proof or no proof.

One entertaining bit of evidence Mr. Morrow supplied the committee was how to start a strike. He told how he and a group he called communists started a strike in the Briggs (auto bodies) plant in Detroit.

Took Over the Works.

TWO HUNDRED communists were rounded up from Toledo, Pittsburgh, Pontiac and Flint. Supplied with faked identification badges they filtered into the plant through many entrances, turned off power switches in key places and then rushed out to the assembly lines to tell the startled workers that "We are on strike."

From then on they kept the men "at fever pitch" by stories that the company was bringing in truck loads of strike breakers and militia from distant points and that the men better prepare to defend their jobs. Only 500 men were thus put on strike. Morrow said, but added that the picket line was swelled by 5,000 unemployed rounded up by the communists.

The committee hearings, once a great show in Washington, are not a sell-out here any more. One casual spectator appeared to hear Mr. Morrow.

OUR FAMILY SKELETON

LaGuardia Has Ideas And Ideals

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York City occasionally is mentioned as a 1940 presidential possibility. He hasn't been very prominently mentioned however—not thus far. But he may be much more prominently mentioned before long.

Leaving out of consideration the chance of President Roosevelt's renomination, the New Dealers are rather hard up for a 1940 candidate. Not as hard up as the Republicans are, but sufficiently so.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull ought to be the best Democratic bet. Alone among Democrats, he probably could hold the New Dealers and anti-New Dealers together. But Hull, by general agreement, is too old.

Vice President John N. Garner is too old, too. Moreover, his nomination would alienate all the New Dealers. At a guess, I'd say that Thomas E. Dewey, for example, on the G. O. P. ticket, plus New Deal Democratic votes, might (if Dewey makes a creditable showing in his New York gubernatorial campaign) beat the Texan on 1940's election day. For Garner is anathema to inter-party liberalism, which is potent these times and certainly will be two years hence.

Wallace Not Too Popular.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace is young and brainy enough, but he isn't popular with urbanites and he hasn't satisfied more than about half of the country's farmers. Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri wouldn't suit the New Deal Democrats or catch any Republicans. Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson isn't known to speak of. Postmaster General James A. Farley has his former boxing commissioning of New York to live down—a glorified prize fight manager.

And so on down the line—there's something the matter with each of the most of them.

Mayor LaGuardia likewise has his drawbacks.

For one thing, he isn't a Democrat. He has served in Congress as a Republican and a Socialist. He has served New York's mayoralty as a Fusionist and an American Laborite.

Yet, what of it? He's a New Dealer. He should gobble all New Deal Democratic votes; all advanced liberal Republican votes; all Farmer-Labor votes; all Progressive Party votes; all American Labor votes; all maverick votes (like those of Senator George W. Norris' followers).

He's a New Yorker, which is something of an handicap out in the western sticks. Still, he was brought up in Arizona; a westerner himself, and a semi-southern.

He's a bit close to his Italian ancestry. That can't be helped. He has a brilliant American war record, anyway.

He admits that his name ("Fiorello," or, in Italian, "Little Flower") is slightly ridiculous—and it is, considering how hard-boiled he is. Even that isn't his own fault, though. How could his mother, christening him, have foreseen that his name would weigh with him presidentially later?

Curiously enough, the mayor is accused of having Jewish blood. Again, what of it?

Outstanding in Congress.

I claim credit for having recognized Fiorello H. LaGuardia as a conspicuous member of congress when he was only one of the rank-and-file of representatives.

He was a so-called Socialist then.

The last time I saw him, "I have certain socio-political ideas of my own," he said.

Like 'em or not—LaGuardia has ideas. And ideals.

It isn't pure politics with him.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

Believe This or Not!

By ELIOT JONES
Professor of Transportation and Public Utilities, Stanford University.

The railroad situation is very acute—so acute, indeed, that it has been seriously suggested that it may be necessary to call congress in special session this fall in order to deal with it.

The railroads, pointing to the fact that railroad wage rates are higher now than they were at the peak of the boom in 1929, despite the cost of living is much less than in 1929, are taking steps to meet the acute situation by enlisting public opinion in support of a reduction in wages.

The railroad labor leaders naturally oppose the reduction. In so doing they fall back upon the administration doctrine that wages must be maintained in order to maintain purchasing power. Though this argument is of doubtful validity, especially in view of the fact that the cost of living has greatly declined since wages were increased in the summer and fall of 1937, it is possible for reasonable, intelligent men to differ upon the matter.

In opposing a wage reduction the railroad labor men, through their official newspaper called Labor, make another argument, but one that is utterly untenable. In order to minimize the seriousness of the railroad situation they argue that the railroads in calculating their "profits" should include sums earned for bond interest, as well as for dividends. The newspaper goes so far, indeed, as to characterize the refusal to include bond interest in profit as a "bookkeeping trick."

The railroads, as everyone knows, are closely regulated by the Interstate Commerce commission, and they keep their accounts, of course, in the form required by the commission. According to the accounting system prescribed by the commission what is left of operating revenues after operating expenses, taxes, equipment rents, etc., have been deducted is called net railway operating income. This so-called net railway operating income is not the equivalent of profit, of course, because bond interest has to be deducted from net railway operating income before arriving at profits, out of which come dividends, if any, to stockholders.

The contention of labor is that anything earned for bond interest is really a part of profit, and therefore railroad profits, instead of being pitifully small, as claimed by the railroads, have been very large.

The charge that failure to treat bond interest as profit is a "bookkeeping trick" is so absurd that it is difficult to believe that anyone would dare to make it. Suppose the railroads had borrowed from a bank, as many do from time to time. Is it not obvious that bank interest is not profit, but an expense that must be deducted in computing the profit? Is it not obvious that if operating expenses taxes and bank interest consumed all the gross receipts there would be no profit.

Or suppose the railroads borrowed from the government, as many of them have done at times, to purchase equipment, to meet bond interest, and even to pay wages. Is it proper to say that the money paid to the government was really a part of the profits? If profits are to perform this kind of vanishing act, the railroad obviously will be utterly unable to attract new capital through the sale of preferred and common stocks.

Why Not Live Now?
Why not live in today?
For who can know
When comes the final call
And he must go?

Enjoy each single thing,
Each rose, each leaf,
For your delight may be A night's length brief.

Tomorrow's there may be
And you must plan
For them, but while you do Take what you can

Of joy out of today.
This is your own.
Of this you can be sure,

A Farmer's Diary

Digging Potatoes.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WE DUG our potatoes this week. Each morning the air seemed cooler, and we knew that should a heavy rain occur and then a freeze, the crop would be a loss.

I first tried digging them with a fork, but the soil was hard and digging was heavy labor, and extremely slow. So I got my neighbor with his team of mules and single shovel plow, to plow them out. They were planted in newly cleared ground, and I feared a digger would be hard to handle.

The old mules groaned as the farmer set his plow too deep at first, but soon I saw the white spuds roll out like living things as the team moved up and down the rows. As I stood there watching each new furrow made, I thought how much better fitted for that task those mules were than was I. The autumn soil is more fragrant, and the

Are They Young . . . Or Are They Yellow?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THIS craze for Staying Young. . . . These people who insist on acting like and thinking of themselves as Irresponsible Infants, even though they're wearing "Stylish Stouts" and toupees.

What's really behind it? Are they actually young? Or are they just yellow . . . playing at being kids because they're afraid to be mature and face the music.

Time was when Youth wasn't regarded as a particular treat. Most folks counted on Growing Up . . . didn't expect any medals until they had. Then came the World War. And, after it, a tremendous yen to forget front line trenches—and Just Play. So, overnight, everyone went ga-ga. Bald headed boozers cavorted around like Campus Cut-ups. Doddering Dowagers became Glamour Gals.

All of which is very fine—in theory. It's a great thing to have a young heart, whatever your rating on the calendar. There's no spectacle more cheering or inspiring than a frankly aging human being, who has managed to surmount his varicose veins and 36 in. waist line and retain his lively interest in the human scene.

There's not only dignity in such an attitude but there's a refreshing gallantry. These gray heads are taking life in their stride. They are living as human flesh was supposed to live . . . mellowing soul in maturing flesh. They are as beautiful—and right—as a serene and golden harvest.

But those others . . . those Chronic Adolescents who are so furiously determined on never being Anything Else But . . . frankly they give me an extreme pain in my thinker. As interior decorations they may be swell scenery. But as well-rounded humans, they're a bunch of warts.

No, this isn't sour grapes. I'm not sore because I'm wearing aprons and black taffeta at the age when they're running around in one-piece bathing suits . . . and making mustard pickle and piccalilli where they are now jittingbugging to Benny Goodman's hot music. I'll even admit that I infinitely prefer the playing, prancing parents of 1938 to the Sourpuss models of 1899.

But the knickknacks to which I refer—and strenuously object—are not parents. These Giggling Gerts and Rah-Rah Ronny's of 35 and upwards who refer to themselves as Us Kids, are of no recognizable mature pattern. They're just a hang-over from the nursery—something that didn't jell.

And who do they think they're fooling? Maybe themselves. Maybe the other kids. But certainly not life!

For Life has very definite ideas about what she wants her children to do and when she wants them to do it. And a little thing like a World War or Market Crash isn't going to alter her pattern.

Yet on they go . . . trying to outsmart Nature . . . trying to stuff the hunger in their clamoring flesh. And getting nowhere. Which, if it were only their bad luck, I wouldn't mind. But I'm beginning to suspect that instead Foolishness of War.

Editor News-Journal:

According to some of the newspaper stories, and a lot of other stories that are of no particular importance, they might impress on the minds of American youth that they should live in fear of other powers.

If there is a good reason for such a suspense it might be all right to sit up and take notice. But it might be better to think more about the importance of life on earth, and the preservation of life, than to think of sacrificing life for anything so unprofitable as war.

Since the Creator went to all the trouble to give everybody a complete system of human anatomy that works better than anything that man has yet put on the market, it seems foolish to take a single life—something that can never be given back—just to satisfy some powerful dictator's poor judgment.

City teachers, parents and school officials.

Parents started a movement to petition Gov. Davey for a special session of the legislature and then named a committee to attempt to raise funds locally to re-open the schools.

Thousands of the younger pupils went home happy at the prospect of a long vacation. But high school seniors saw the situation from another angle. The seniors worried about earning their diplomas for next June and football fans lamented the cancelling of the rest of their grid schedule for the year.

The state sales tax division, which was blamed by critics for the closing of the schools and the failure of the state school foundation program, was defended by State Tax Commissioner Walter Mitchell.

Predicting that a $112,000 salary shortage would force a lay-off of 275 sales tax inspectors, Mitchell asserted: "We are well aware of the fact that a $10,000,000 decrease in collections has aided in the establishment of a crisis, but is it our fault? No! The persons affected now are the very ones who aided in the precipitation of the unfortunate situation."

"Every time the legislature turns around it finds something else to exempt," he added.

He urged purchasers to demand their sales tax stamps to show that the merchant actually paid the tax.

party is spending yet speakers from the Republican platform advocate such a plan. I call that inconsistency."

Walter B. Woodward, Republican, who is opposing William A. Ashbrook, for the 17th district congressional seat, is a Townsend plan supporter.

Gongwer asserted that "progressive legislation" had been drafted under the Democratic party.

"It is probably not all perfect and it may need some changes but even the Republicans don't admit that it is wrong."

"They claim they can do better, but you can't solve 1938 problems with an 1898 way of thinking," Gongwer said.

He told the audience of more than 100 that the Roosevelt administration had done more in every way than any previous administration of either party by attempting conscientiously to provide "more happiness for more people."

Charges that the Republican gubernatorial nominee John W. Bricker was "incapable" of handling affairs of the governor's office were hurled by Harold T. Lutz, assistant Richland county prosecutor, who spoke in behalf of the state Democratic ticket.

Lutz credited Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy, seeking reelection, with being responsible for obtaining the $75,000,000 Ohio Bell refund, charging that Bricker, while in the attorney general's office had been ready to "sell the people of Ohio out for $1,000,000."

"If Bricker can't handle one branch of the state government, he certainly cannot be given the responsibility of handling the entire state government," Lutz said.

He asserted that Congressman William A. Ashbrook and U. S. Senator Robert J. Bulkley had the best interests of the people of their districts at heart.

He lauded Ralph C. Lutz, general assemblyman, as a "true Democrat" and a man who was in accord with the Democratic gubernatorial candidate Charles Sawyer's plan to take "the state highway department out of politics."

C. L. Mitchell, county commissioner and Norman L. Wolfe, county auditor, both candidates for re-election, he termed the "watch dogs" of the county treasurer.

Other speakers were Atty. Marshall Moore, who spoke in behalf of the proposed half-mile levy for tuberculosis care; Mrs. Harriet Stuart, central committee woman from Bucyrus who spoke in behalf of State Treasurer Clarence Knisley, candidate for re-election; John Correll, president of the Richland county Young Democratic club and John C. O'Donnell, executive committee chairman.

Others introduced at the meeting were candidates Mitchell and Wolfe, and Howard Wenning, county recorder, and John Kolb, county treasurer.

The meeting was in charge of Philip Smith, former councilman.

Music was furnished by the R. L. and M. studios and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Louise M. Reese, chairman of the refreshments committee was assisted by Mrs. George Hall, Mrs. Glenn Davidson, Mrs. Mearl Lehman, Mrs. Philip Smith, Mrs. Charles Lex, Mrs. Marion Nixon and Mary K. Newcomer.

importance to Japan since the closure of the Hong Kong-Canton route.

If the Indo-China line were severed, China would have to depend for any foreign materials on the overland routes from British Burma into Yunnan and the long route from Soviet Russia through remote Sinkiang province.

A foreign office spokesman who commented on a United States note protesting against the present trade situation in China said that the nine-power treaty governing policy of the great powers must be revised in view of the many changes in China.

As regards a reply to the American note—which was delivered Oct. 6 though it was made public by the United States only yesterday—the spokesman said he was unable to predict when the government would be able to answer it.

The United States note was released to morning papers of Japan today. It received little attention because of the public celebration of the occupation of Hankow.

It was forecast that the government, when it did reply to the American note, would emphasize the changes in China and the fact that Japan and China are at war to explain conditions of which the United States government complained.

As part of its argument, Japan was expected to say that the "open door" policy, based on the former status in the Far East, should be considered outdated because of present conditions. However, the government has not admitted that there has been actual discrimination against foreign countries in China.

The nine-power treaty was signed during the Washington naval disarmament conference in 1921-1922 by the United States, Great Britain, Belgium, China, France, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands and Portugal. It pledged its signatories anew to maintain the open door policy in China, involving free access of all the nations to Chinese markets, and to respect the sovereignty, independence and territorial and administrative integrity of China.

Japs Faced With U. S. Economic Boycott.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The United States today confronted Japan with the choice of an abrupt about-face in her China trade monopoly policy or else be subjected to a virtual American economic boycott.

State department officials remained officially silent on the future of Japanese-American relations, but informed circles interpreted America's stinging note of rebuke to Nippon for "unwarranted interference" with American rights in China as meaning pointedly that they must cease or Japan must face the consequences.

Should Japan refuse to be swayed?

SCORES BRICKER PENSION STAND

Berrodin Backs Sawyer While Two Candidates Appear on Same Platform.

He said Sawyer had pledged himself to do everything possible "to remove the operation of the old age pension law from every suggestion of political influence."

The appearance of both Sawyer and Bricker on the same platform in Youngstown, engaging in an oral encounter was somewhat similar to the debates the state's two senatorial candidates, Robert J. Bulkley, Democrat, and Robert A. Taft, Republican, are conducting.

Given Half Hour Each.

The gubernatorial candidates were allotted half an hour apiece at a forum dinner of the Youngstown chamber of commerce.

Sawyer won a coin toss for "position" and chose to speak in rebuttal.

Bricker described as "fraud and fiction" Sawyer's charge that the Republican nominee and Gov. Davey entered a "deal" under which Davey, in return for support, would receive 30 per cent of the state's patronage.

"I have no interest in an opposition party quarrel," said Bricker.

In turn, Sawyer waved a sheaf of papers he said were affidavits from state employees showing they were instructed to support Bricker and reiterated his "unholy alliance" charge.

Bricker challenged Sawyer's sincerity in promising to oust "chiselers" from state government.

"If the Democratic party promises to drive chiselers and grafters from public office, the public has a right to know who the chiselers and grafters are," the Republican declared.

"Ohio will get a 100 per cent change," replied Sawyer. "There will be no chiselers in my administration. As proof of that statement, I cite you the fact that I have started housecleaning in my own party."

"I feel an absence of a communist slate this year," Bricker said, "and thank God the communists are not on my side."

Sawyer declared Bricker's assertions were "the same kind of nonsense he has been spreading all over this state."

"Mr. Bricker has been very fulsome in his praise of the American Federation of Labor as 'the more stable element of American labor,'" said Sawyer. "I call your attention to the fact that William Green, its president, will come back to Ohio Nov. 8 to vote for me and that 1,000 other state labor groups have pledged me their support."

FARM 'BORGIA' FACING PRISON

Neighborhood Gossip Traps Wisconsin Woman, 38, Who Admits Poisoning Two.

(By International News Service)

MADISON, Wis.—A farm wife Borgia with love on her mind and murder in her heart today faced the prospect of spending the remainder of her life behind prison bars.

Trapped by the gossip of her neighbors, Mrs. Florence Peters, 38, confessed in open court yesterday the poison slaying of one husband and the attempt to do away with another in order to be "free."

A mandatory sentence of life imprisonment was deferred pending the introduction of further evidence in the case.

Little bothered by her fate, Mrs. Peters was in tears when she was denied a chance to say good-bye to 24-year-old Edward Harvey of Laramie, Wyo., who was found living at the house when she was arrested.

The killing of Mrs. Peters' first husband John Kestrich was revealed by the suspicions of her neighbors after her present husband, John, was suddenly stricken with arsenic poisoning.

Because of the stories he had heard a constable near Waunakee ordered the body exhumed and traces of the poison were found around the roots of the victim's hair.

Confronted with the evidence Mrs. Peters confessed.

MT. VERNON

(P)—Miss Carolyn Foote, 25, was killed last night when an automobile in which she was riding collided with a truck on route 13, near Elmwood. Earl McCracken, 26, Centerville, riding with Miss Foote, suffered a jaw fracture.

ADMITS SPEEDING

Youth Fined $25 and Costs for Driving 65 Miles an Hour.

Frank V. Stimmmer, 22, of 283 East Third street, charged with driving at 65 miles an hour on Park avenue west last night, pleaded guilty to speeding in municipal court today and was fined $15 and costs.

Lieut. Paul Whipp and Patrolman Floyd Bowers testified that Stimmmer passed the cruiser in which they were riding at a fast rate of speed and endangered the lives of several persons who were crossing the street in front of the Ohio theater.

ISLANDS YIELD ANCIENT SKULLS

Researcher From Smithsonian Institute Makes Discovery in Aleutian Isles.

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—Dr. Ales Hrdlicka of the Smithsonian Institution reported here the evacuation of an enormous burial mound in the Aleutian Islands.

Hrdlicka, the institution's curator of physical anthropology, made the announcement as he completed 10 years of spasmodic excavation work in the islands that stretch from northern Alaska almost to Asia. The islands were used as giant stepping stones as early man migrated from Asia to North America, many scientists believe.

Hrdlicka, aided by a group of volunteer college students, found on Kodiak Island a series of skeletons of men belonging to the pre-Aleut era. He said the skulls "were all oblong-shaped, which is an unmistakable sign of the mysterious pre-Aleuts."

The Smithsonian explorers also toured the Russian-owned Commander Islands, hoping to find some trace of ancient man that would show that these islands also were used as stepping stones from Asia to America. Hrdlicka found several old settlement sites, but none dated back further than the time of Russian occupation.

"This negative result," Hrdlicka reported, "proves definitely that the Commanders were not a part of the migration route, and that if ancient peoples crossed by way of the Aleutians they must have reached them by way of the Kruken Islands, now owned by Japan, or from north of Kamchatka.

"The negative finding throws doubt on the early peopling of Kamchatka itself, sometimes considered the ancestral home of part of the American Indians. If an early people had lived there and struck out westward they certainly would have chosen the obvious Commander Island route. If they had stopped on the Commanders, conditions are such that they certainly would have spent some time on the islands and left signs of their habitation."

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Deer Hunting—John Charles and C. W. Marks left yesterday for Glendale, Ont., where they will spend ten days hunting deer in Canada.

Hold Open House—The Y. W. C. A. will hold open house for Girl Reserves at 7.30 p. m. today, Miss Violet Richardson, staff secretary, will be in charge of the dancing and Halloween games.

Orchestra Rehearses—The Mansfield Junior Symphony orchestra will hold a rehearsal at Eagles hall at 7 p. m. Saturday under the direction of Eugene Weinberger. Musicians are still needed in the strings, wood winds and percussion sections, Weinberger said.

Tire and Wheel Stolen—The theft of a tire and wheel from his automobile while parked on Elm street last night was reported to police today by D. E. Bretzner, Shelby.

Grotto Party—A Halloween party for members of Baku Grotto, their families and friends, will be held at 9 p. m. today at Grotto hall. There will be dancing and refreshments. Arrangements are in charge of a committee headed by Harry Fric.

Gets 30 Days—Pleading guilty in municipal court today to a charge of petit larceny, Gus Hoffenburg, transient, was sentenced to 30 days in jail. Hoffenburg was arrested yesterday by police who charged him with the theft of a $10 leather jacket from the Montgomery Ward and company store.

Fined For Conduct—Mike Bowerman, colored, of 215 North Diamond street, was fined $5 and costs in municipal court today when he pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct. Bowerman was arrested last night on North Main street by Patrolman E. D. Mitchell, who testified Bowerman had taken a bottle of whisky from the state liquor store without paying for it and then became abusive when ordered to turn the bottle over to employees.

BLAZE KILLS 3

Firemen Suffocated by Smoke and Escaping Gas.
NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—Two firemen died from suffocation early today while battling a fire in the basement of a butcher store which officials estimated caused less than $10 damage.

Acting Battalion Chief George Jacques, 39, and Fireman Frederick Herrmann, 36, were overcome by a combination of escaping illuminating gas and smoke, other firemen said.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

HI-Y OLDEST, MOST ACTIVE OF 'Y' GROUPS

First Club Organized in 1916, Today There are 5 With 135 Members.

Organized 22 years ago, the Hi-Y clubs are the oldest and most active of Y. M. C. A. groups in Mansfield and hold a similar place in 'Y' work throughout the nation. Comprised of junior and senior high school boys, the clubs have a total membership today of 135. They meet every week during the school year.

The first Mansfield group was organized Nov. 16, 1916, at what is now John Simpson Junior high school. Effio Plazure was president and George A. Davis and Atty. William F. Black were the advisory council. This group is now known as the Senior Hi-Y club.

Today there are five Hi-Y clubs in Mansfield, one for the freshman boys at John Simpson Junior high school, and one group each for the sophomore, junior and senior classes, and colored boys at Senior high school.

In 1921 the Junior Hi-Y for boys of the junior class was organized, and from 1930 on, three other Hi-Y clubs were formed. They are the Sophomore club, Freshman club, and the youngest unit, the Tau Gamma Rho Hi-Y for colored boys at Senior high.

Variety of Subjects.
At their weekly meetings the clubs discuss such subjects as crime and criminals, living religiously, boy and girl relationships, and choosing a vocation. At various times they also have different business and professional men talk on their respective vocations.

The Hi-Y clubs also aid in many projects at the schools. One of the best known is the "Find Yourself" campaign sponsored annually during which business and professional people interview the students on their vocations in an effort to help the student "find himself."

Throughout the country the Hi-Y movement has adopted as its purpose, to create, maintain and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character. Ralph Chapman, general secretary of the "Y," said.

The slogan of the Hi-Y is frequently stated as the Four C's—Clean living, Clean speech, Clean scholarship, and Clean athletics," he explained.

Officers of the five Hi-Y clubs are: Senior club—David Lautsbaugh, president; Robert Fleming, vice president; Robert Stretch, secretary; William Condon, treasurer; and Herman D. Bishop, assistant principal at Senior high school, advisor; Junior club—Harold Williams, president; David Chatlain, vice president; Harold Wynn, secretary; Warren Brad-

SUIT DISMISSED

Court Turns Down Request for Additional Compensation.

A suit filed by Ernest Stafford, Mansfield, seeking industrial compensation from the State Industrial Commission has been dismissed in common pleas court today by Judge C. H. Huston.

Stafford, who was paid $6,383 by the industrial commission during a 10-year period after he was injured at the Westinghouse plant in 1926, sought additional compensation.

The industrial commission discontinued payments to Stafford two years ago and turned down his application for more compensation, his petition said.

His back was injured when he fell from a truck while employed at the Westinghouse plant.

Movie Will Show Processes Used In Pasteurizing Milk

Mansfield milk consumers will have an opportunity to see the process used in pasteurizing milk when the motion picture of Mansfield is shown at the Park theater.

For the film, which is being completed this week, takes spectators into the front door of a modern milk plant, right through the plant and out to the shipping platform.

The picture, "Your Town, Mansfield," will show the operations of a number of concerns in the city, including plants and business offices. It was started several weeks ago.

Several hundred Mansfielders will be seen in the picture as "shots" have been taken of city departments and officials, clubs and schools. Ralph H. Shaffer, manager of the Park theater, said he expected to have the film early next month for showing at his theater.

Fun-Loving Duke 'Exiled'

The Duke of Kent, pictured above with his wife, the former Princess Marina, and their baby son, Prince Edward, has been "promoted" to the post of Governor-General of Australia, succeeding Lord Gowrie. The "promotion" is a form of exile for the fun-loving Duke, who is a favorite of his brother, the Duke of Windsor. Marina wept when she heard the news. Both are extremely popular in London.

TALKS MONDAY

ASHLAND—Dr. Johnathan Forman, Columbus, editor of the Ohio State Medical Journal, will give the viewpoint of the medical profession on some of the present social problems when he speaks on "Our Present Dilemma" at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Ashland Lions' club Monday noon at Hotel Otter.

Dr. Forman, who for several years was assistant professor of pathology at Ohio State university, has made many contributions to medical literature. Members of the Young Men's Business club, the Rotary club and members of the medical and dental societies have been invited to the luncheon meeting.

THEATERS

THIS and That: Greta Garbo's publicity men are boasting that while in Sweden the "glamorous gal" was invited to a party which was given for royalty and that she attended the party in her slacks. . . . James Cagney bought a guitar with the first $12 he ever earned. He'll play one in his picture, "Okla. Kid." . . . A Mansfield theater will offer a "betcha can't take it" program soon, with the two greatest "horror" pictures on the same bill— "Frankenstein" and "Dracula." . . . The Ritz Brothers will receive $50,000 for their World's fair appearances in New York next year.

Sequel to "Borderland." Mexican bandits are pitted against the hard-riding ranchers from the Bar 20 ranch in the exciting new Hopalong Cassidy action drama "In Old Mexico," opening today at the Madison. It is the first sequel ever made of a Cassidy film, and is a follow-up on "Borderland," made last season. It concerns the return of "the Fox" whom Hoppy sent to prison in the other film.

Another Hit Booked. The box office hit "You Can't Take It With You" has one more day to run at the Ohio theater after today to round out its full week. It continues through Saturday. At the midnight matinee Saturday "Suez" makes its Mansfield bow. From advance reports on "Suez" it may prove to be another "hold over the week" picture, for it has Loretta Young, Tyrone Power, Annabella, and a sand storm that is said to be a hummer.

Singing Discovery. Young Maureen O'Connor, who makes her film debut in Jackie Cooper's picture, "Boy of the Streets," may be a "discovery" for her studio, for she has a good singing voice and can act. In the picture she champions Jackie who is the leader of a gang of tough young hoodlums of the street. The picture is being shown at the Park theater, along with "I Hate Women."

West Is Still Wild. The west is still wild and not made up of dude ranches, if one is to believe the movies. A story of the "wild west" comes to the Majestic today with Jack Randall as the man behind the two-guns. "Man's Country" is the story of the men who made the west a safe place to live. Gary Cooper in "Adventures of Marco Polo" is also on the bill.

Hungary Accepts Czech Offer of 3,860 Miles of Land

ARMY EXPERTS TO DECIDE IN AREA DISPUTED

Agreement Brings Settlement of Long-Standing Quarrel Over Territory Demands.

(By Associated Press)
BUDAPEST — Hungary and Czechoslovakia appeared today to be on the way to a peaceful settlement of their long-standing and often-threatening territorial dispute.

The Budapest government in a new note last night accepted the Czechoslovak offer to cede to Hungary about 3,860 square miles of land with predominantly Hungarian population.

Hungary also agreed that military experts should meet immediately to organize Czech evacuation and Hungarian occupation of the area and that a German-Italian arbitration commission should deal with eight disputed districts.

Czechoslovakia had demanded that the mediators settle the entire dispute and fix the time for the occupation of the whole area demanded by Hungary.

No Major Obstacle.
Diplomatic circles believed, however, that this would be no major obstacle because German and Italian mediators were likely to permit Hungary to occupy the undisputed regions as soon as the arbitration committee is formed.

Hungary also adhered to the original demand that plebiscites be conducted in autonomous Slovakia and Ruthenia, but it was understood the government felt the request necessary to satisfy Hungarians.

Reports from the Czech-Hungarian border, meanwhile, said residents of Komarno, directly across the Danube in Czechoslovakia, were awaiting tensely the next move in the quarrel. Czechoslovak soldiers continued guarding entrances to main roads and bridges into Hungary. Thousands of troops were concentrated in that important shipbuilding and railway center.

Residents of Komarno, described as a pure Hungarian community of 24,000 people, were prohibited from staging demonstrations or displaying Hungarian flags. A curfew regulation was enforced rigidly.

Hungarian troops on the Komarno side of the Danube were ready to cross the bridge whenever the order was given.

(Andrew Brody, who resigned Wednesday as premier of autonomous Ruthenia after holding the post two weeks, was arrested on a treason charge after police said the national government's central parliamentary committee accused him of negotiating secretly with Hungary for secession of Ruthenia.)

Woman Gives Tip 'Solving' Georgia Pastor's Murder

SAVANNAH, Ga. — (INS) — A young woman was credited today with having given police the tip that was said to have solved the mystery slaying of Dr. Charles H. Lee in his rectory at historic Christ church last February.

Two resort operators on St. Simons island where the church is located and two colored persons were charged with the killing after one of the colored men was said to have confessed they were hired to do the job.

Accused in the killing are Henry J. Cofer and his brother, W. H. Cofer, named as instigators in the plot because of the attacks made by Dr. Lee in his pulpits against the island resorts.

The colored men are Willie Cooney and George Cleyburn, 26. The unnamed girl, said to be a former convict from Macon, Ga. told police she had seen one of the Cofers give Cleyburn $50 on the night of the killing. The clue gave the officers the lead they have been seeking for nearly eight months, having believed from the start that the crime was the result of Dr. Lee's anti-vice campaign.

Autoist Wins $1,200 In Suit Against City

Up and Down THE STREET

City Patrolman E. D. Mitchell and Joseph Cusick, custodian of the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank, were still rubbing their eyes today after an encounter with a tear gas bomb in the bank last night. While cleaning in the bank, Cusick accidentally set off the bomb, used for protection against robbers, and before he could get to the street he was blinded by the suffocating fumes. Mitchell, who was passing, went to the rescue and he, too, was forced outside before he could get the windows open.

Bowler Pete Linster might claim attention from Bob Ripley, the "Believe It or Not" cartoonist. Pete, who is also one of the city's better golfers, accounted for a unique string of bowling scores in the last few weeks. His totals were 600, 599, 598, 597, 596, and 595. They were not made in that order, but he bowled a different score each time and not once did he duplicate a score or permit his totals to vary more than 5 pins.

J. E. Smith, senior high school faculty member, and his Missus are anxious to extend apologies to whoever called on them the other evening and were so unceremoniously turned away. Smith said a couple with a small child were probably dumbfounded when all the lights in the Smith house went out after the visitors rang the door bell. The Smiths were trying to discourage persistent Halloweeners, and didn't know until some of the boys told them that they had called.

Another Mansfield group goes on the air lines Sunday when the Jonathan Glee club, made up of 32 male voices, will be heard at 4:30 p. m. from WHKC Columbus. It will be their second program over that station and they are singing several of the long established favorites, including "Sylvia," "Spirit Flower" and "Song of the Sea." Dwight Hodgson, bass, will sing "Invictus" as a solo. The club was organized and is directed by Albert Arnold. Elizabeth Burneson is accompanist.

HUSKERS BATTLE

25,000 to See Farmers Vie in Bang-Board Derby.

LONDON, (AP)—Forty men, their eyes pointed toward farm belt fame, battled today to determine who was best in the performance of the routine farm chore of corn husking.

A gallery of about 25,000 was expected to look on while two of the competitors banged their way to the state corn husking championships. One of them will get a crack at the national crown.

The contests will be held at the nearby Orleton farms, with 20 men competing in each of the two regular events, standing and shock husking.

Both titles will be defended by last year's champions who won at Upper Sandusky. Noble Goodman of Wyandot county will attempt to save the standing corn event title, while Harold Oatney of Fairfield county defends the shock corn honors.

BUILD PLANES

Frank Lahm Cadets To Engage in Model Competition.

A model airplane building project was started last night by the Frank Lahm Cadets, model airplane club, at the Y. M. C. A.

Members started construction of a model designed by Warren Morris, a club member. When the models are completed, a contest will be held to determine which plane is the best constructed and the best in flight.

It is planned to hold the contest sometime in November.

several territories throughout the nation and taking into consideration the low inventories held by distributors, we are confident we will be able to operate at full production not only through the winter months but the entire year.

"General business conditions have improved," Stephens said, "and tire sales for 1939 should show an increase over the past year."

A series of sales conferences which have been held during the past month under the direction of J. S. Wainright, general sales manager, closed today at the Mansfield plant.

Representatives from virtually every state in the union who attended the meetings have brought optimistic reports of a growing demand for the Mansfield Tire company's products, Stephens said.

CROAK RETIRES AFTER 39 YEARS SERVICE WITH WESTERN UNION

Today marked an important chapter in the life of Arthur L. Croak, section equipment foreman for the Western Union Telegraph company. For today he retired from active duty after 39 years of continuous service with the firm.

After nearly four decades in the employ of one company and never once late on the job, a record that few achieve, Croak still a comparatively young man, is "going to enjoy life."

Not that he hasn't enjoyed the past 60 years, but he's turned the job over to a "younger man" wants to "fool around in the garden" and possibly take a vacation in Florida next winter.

And then he'll have time to follow the great American pastime of baseball. He hasn't missed a Sunday game in Cleveland for years and during the week he follows the play by play report on the telegraph ticker.

"Art" as he is known to a wide acquaintance is one of the "freshmen" councilmen who stepped into politics for the first time last year when he was elected the Sixth ward councilman in council on the Democratic ticket.

"I'll have a great deal more time to spend on council duties, too," he says. Croak is chairman of council's claims committee and also a member of the utilities and light committees.

Recalling his early career with the telegraph company, Croak said the standard of living had increased a good deal since 1899 when he first went to work for the company as a pole setter at less than $50 a month.

"That was in Cleveland a few

ARTHUR L. CROAK

years after I had left school back in Lockhaven, Pa., where I was born."

"I have spent 39 years on the job since that time with one exception," he said. "That was in 1918 when I was ill for 10 days."

From pole setter, Croak was advanced to clock inspector covering the territory from Hammond, Ind., to Pittsburgh, until transferred to Mansfield in 1914 as equipment foreman. He has been in charge of the installation of telegraph and printer service in Richmond, Ashland, Crawford and Wayne counties.

Two years after his transfer here he married a Mansfield girl, the former Mita Bonin. They have two daughters, both at home, at 232 South Adams street.

Croak advised the young man of today to enter the electrical field, which he claimed is "just coming into its own."

Croak recalls that the biggest thrill in his life was 10 years ago while working atop a 40-foot telegraph pole in Wooster that his body accidentally came in contact with a 2,300 volt high tension line.

"There was a terrible flash and if it hadn't been for my safety belt I would have been hurled from the pole."

"Think of it, more juice than they use in the electric chair and all I received was a burn on the leg," he said.

JURORS DEBATE 5 HOURS BEFORE GIVING VERDICT

Only 9 of 12 Sign Decision in Favor of Cincy Man Who Sued in Wife's Death.

After deliberating five hours and 20 minutes, a jury in common pleas court late yesterday awarded William Willet, jr., of Cincinnati, $1,200 damages for the death of his wife in an automobile accident here more than two years ago. He had asked $25,000 in a suit against the city of Mansfield.

Only nine of the 12 jurors signed the verdict. The case was submitted to the jury shortly before 11 a. m. yesterday. A recess was called after an hour and deliberations were resumed at 1 p. m., the jurors returning their verdict at 5:20 p. m.

Willet, his father, William Willet, sr., and his three small children waited in the courtroom during the afternoon for the verdict.

Killed in June, 1936.

The damage action was filed by the father of the children after Mrs. Julia Willet, their mother, was killed in a crash on Lexington avenue in June, 1936. She was thrown from a car operated by Willet's father when a front wheel of the car dropped into a rut along the street, causing the car to skid and turn over. Mrs. Willet was thrown out and suffered a skull fracture.

Willet contended in his action that the city was negligent in not keeping the street in repair and failing to erect a warning sign at the place where the accident occurred.

The jury viewed the scene of the crash shortly after the trial opened Wednesday.

Willet's father, also of Cincinnati, has filed a suit against the city asking $10,590 for injuries he received in the crash and for damages to his automobile.

Members of the jury which heard the case were Harley Fulton, Samuel Withers, George Carter, Janet Lanner, Abraham J. Willett, Clinton Huff, Laura Clark, Leo C. Perl, Walter J. Burger, Bess Buchanan, Roselle Cummins and Emmett Bell.

PUPPETS HERE

Marionettes Give Show for Adults Tonight.

After playing two performances at Senior High school auditorium today, the Rufus Rose Marionettes will give a third performance tonight for adults.

It was the second time that the Rose Marionettes have visited Mansfield. They played to large audiences here four years ago, soon after they had finished their extended engagement at the Century of Progress in Chicago.

Puppets made in the likeness of popular entertainers will entertain tonight's audience, with a Sonja Henie and a Fred Astaire making their wooden bows. "Treasure Island," which was given at the morning show, will also be repeated tonight. This afternoon the Rose troupe of puppeteers presented "Pinocchio." Both the earlier shows today were for school children.

Proceeds from the Rose shows will go to the scholarship fund of the Council of Parent-Teachers Association, which is sponsoring the educational-entertainment project.

JAIL ASHLANDERS

Lebanon Police Arrest 2 After Automobile Collision.

LEBANON—(INS)—Carl Yealey, 33, and Carl Mann, 52, both of Ashland, were held by police today following an automobile collision on state route 63 near Shaker Hill. Sheriff William Hufford said Yealey was charged with driving while intoxicated and Mann was slated on an intoxication count. Both men suffered minor cuts and bruises.

But Both Dems, G. O. P. Claim Ohio Victory by 125,000.

COLUMBUS — (AP)—Democratic and Republican state headquarters today each predicted victory for their candidates in the gubernatorial and senatorial races by identical margins—125,000 votes.

The predictions came from Democratic Chairman Arthur L. Limbach and Republican Chairman Ed Schorr.

400 AT MOOSE EVENT

A crowd of 400 attended the program and dance held in honor of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the model child city at Mooseheart, Ill., at the Mansfield lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, last night. Ira Metcalf's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing.

If New York Will Do for Business, It Ought to Do Just as Well for a Home

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Yes, I know what the constitution says. But, still and all, they come piling in here in hordes with a cardboard suitcase and a letter of introduction to someone who has preceded them to take advantage of the opportunities, and yet you will find thousands of them who never do come to feel that they belong here.

They don't want to take a stake in the place. Instead they send our good money back home and cling together to keep alive the old traditions and avoid being assimilated. And all the time they are knocking, knocking, knocking and yearning for the day when they have made a pile here so that they can go home again and live like kings in retirement on the cheap rate of exchange.

You do a little nosing around in New York and you will find little groups and state societies—Hoosiers talking about the frost on the pumpkin and singing about the banks of the Wabash, southerners talking about their old colored mammas and singing about the fields of snowy white, Californians who were starving to death when they left home, yelling "California, Here I Come!" and even Kansans giving themselves a buildup about the joys and kind fraternity of life on the steppes.

What I say is, if they loved it so well back where they came from why didn't they stay there? And if they are so fastened to the simple honesty and charm of life back home, well, the trains and buses still keep regular schedules, and if they aren't fast enough there are always the air lines.

But can you picture a Hoosier going back to the candlelight which gleams through the sycamores in the song they love to sing and unclenching a swell job in New York at ten times the most he ever made back home?

Let the power go off for one night in New York, for instance, and give them just a little dose of that candlelight stuff and listen to the squawks. Candlelight may be romantic on the banks of the Wabash in the song, but it would be darkness of the nation's hour of doom in New York.

And clannish! One comes to town, hustles around for a few years, makes a nice little spot for himself, meanwhile sending New York dough home, and pretty soon he has got his nephew or his fraternity brother from old Swish, or Spearfield, planted in the office while New York boys walk the streets with nothing in their pockets and nothing to do.

Then there comes along his deceased sister's daughter just out of college and he sends her in for a job with another back-homer up the street, and the first thing anybody knows there is a regular hatch of them earning a living in New York—hating New York, constantly knocking New York, wishing New York was like the place they were so eager to get away from and treating the regular New Yorkers like dirt under their feet.

One moves into a neighborhood and—like those little shell gags in the ocean, those what-do-you-call-them, molluscs or something they tie together—and pretty soon there is a regular island of them. One throws his business orders to the other and vice versa, and if there comes a little squeeze from one of the natives to obtain some business or a job, why, that only goes to prove what a lousy town New York is and what low ethics New York has. And they are appalled by the graft and crime, as though nobody ever used the squeeze or took down any political lug or stuck up a jug back home. In Oklahoma or Ohio, for instance.

Yes, I know what the constitution says, but I say if this town is good enough to make a living in they ought to have to make up their minds whether they are going to be New Yorkers or not, and if not get the hell back where they came from. Or, anyway, quit hollering about how they wish they were back there when everybody knows you couldn't bribe them to give up the soft living and big money they get here.

The only reason they think they want to go back home is that they figure they can get some scrawny little daughter of a poverty-stricken neighbor to do the housework for $2 a week and some college boy in the coolie labor class to wash the windows, mind the furnace, and the lawn and drive the car for $8 a week, plus a cut in the woodshed and scraps from the table. But they never go back.

It isn't only the clannishness about jobs and business; it's the resistance to the manners and customs and spirit of New York. They just refuse to get assimilated.

HOLLYWOOD—Whitney Bourne is one of those people you hear about, and practically everything you hear sounds like an act.

She dresses startlingly (you hear) with a happy disregard for fashion, yet manages to look chic (as we don't say in Paris) and grab attention wherever she goes.

She favors evening gowns and slacks, with nothing in wardrobe for in-between occasions. Faced with such an apparel crisis, she'll merely "adapt" one or another of her favorite costumes.

You hear she moved from a $150 apartment in Hollywood to a big-time house in Brentwood with big lawns front and back and more shrubbery than you can count. Economy measure, she said. Then she spent a small fortune redecorating, repainting, rebuilding, reshuffling.

She drives like the wind, has wrapped her car around a tree at least once—herself escaping scratchless—and she's a creature of mad impulses, wild enthusiasms, reckless generosity, and whimsical fancies. She is, in other words a Personality.

That's what you hear — so I went to see.

You get sick and tired of acts after a few years in Hollywood. You suffer slight nausea every time you hear the name Garbo, which may be unfair of you. You wish K. Hepburn would decide which role she's playing and stick to it. You wish all the big fry and the small fry would be themselves.

Well, Whitney Bourne may be an act but I think not. At any rate, she's a very interesting one.

The day I called she was in the throes. Breathless. Telephones and doorbells ringing. Her maid, Marie, housecleaning. Whitney housecleaning too. All that hardware on her arm, jangling like the boss's buzzer on a morning after, showed it. She'd been cleaning out dresser drawers and couldn't find any place to put those bracelets. So she wore them.

Amid all the confusion—she has a rather flattering way of including callers in it—I gathered a few items about Miss B., to wit:

She isn't really a "mad" person as she's pictured—in fact she dislikes "mad" people. She dresses as she does because she likes to dress as she does—and its fun.

She likes fun. She's having a lot of fun even if not much of a movie career. She's practically hopeless on the movie score now. Her option comes up in January and she knows there isn't a contract-extending role in sight. She knows because she has read all the scripts.

She's afraid it's going to be embarrassing, going back to New York without having done more in pictures than she has. ("Fight From Glory," "Love in a Basement," "Double Danger," "Blind Alibi," a small part in "The Mad Miss Manton," etc.)

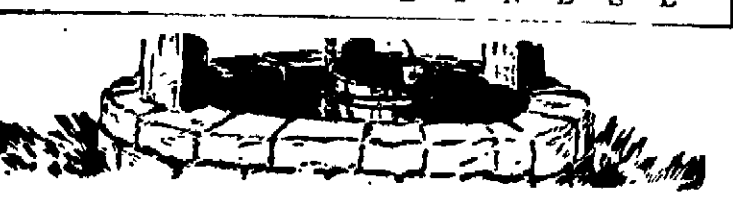

Her grandfather invented a famous sewing machine, but sold out before the fortune came. Her parents sent her to school in Paris. The itch to act made her run away at 15. She applied to the Comedie Francaise, but she did her acting—and starving—at a little Parisian experimental theater. Gilbert Miller saw her there, invited her to New York, and she clicked. Made the movie, "Crime Without Passion," also, and eventually Hollywood.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Have Reception, Dinner For United Brethren Church Head

IN celebration of the fourth year of his appointment as pastor of the First United Brethren church of Mansfield, members of the church entertained Rev. and Mrs. James Boyer last night at a reception and supper at the church. Arrangements were made by Mrs. Earl Crider, Mrs. Leo Jones and Mrs. Robert Hoover, who also presented vocal selections as a trio.

Older members of the congregation gave testimonial speeches following the dinner, and W. T. Hursh, trustee, gave the address of welcome which was responded to by the pastor. Included on the program were vocal numbers by Ada Mae Harbaugh and Donna Weaver, a piano duet by Katherine Stevens and Phyllis Koons and readings by Mildred Strome.

The program was presented in the form of a radio broadcast with Leonard Hutzelman serving as announcer. Rev. and Mrs. Boyer were given a lamp by the congregation.

About 70 attended this affair during which plans were made to have a monthly church night program.

TWO PARTIES FETE MISS BERNICE HEUSS

Friends Entertain at Showers This Week; Will Become Bride of William Enlow Early Tomorrow Morning at Church.

FINAL pre-nuptial entertaining for Miss Bernice Heuss kept the bride-elect of William Enlow busy the past few days. Two affairs were given for her this week. Last night the Misses Marjorie Rhoads and Jane Cunningham entertained at the Rhoads home, 87 Bartley avenue, with a miscellaneous shower.

The 12 guests made a bride's book for Miss Heuss. Luncheon was served at a table decorated with yellow and white appointments. Alarm clocks directed the honoree to the places in which the gifts were concealed.

Mrs. Wesley Enlow and Mrs. William Leach, Springmill street, entertained Wednesday evening with a kitchen shower in honor of the bride-elect. The evening was spent socially by the 10 guests, and a luncheon was served at a table decorated with Halloween appointments. The hostesses presented the bride-to-be with a gift of linen.

Miss Heuss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heuss, 41 Douglas avenue, and Mr. Enlow, son of Harker Enlow, 507 Springmill street, will be married early tomorrow morning at St. Paul Lutheran church by Rev. H. L. Gilbert.

Couple Wed Tuesday By Rev. Iva L. Wallick

At the close of the Tuesday evening service at the Foursquare Gospel church Rev. Iva L. Wallick read the simple ceremony which united in marriage Carrie Cole and Coyle Myers, 80 Wayne street. The bride, who wore a royal blue satin dress and corsage of roses, was attended by her cousin, Mrs. George Lutton.

George Lutton was best man, and the nuptial music was played by Gerald Wallick, violinist. A reception followed at the Lutton home, 118½ Orange street. The couple will make their home in Mansfield.

HAVE SOCIAL.

There were about 300 persons of the community in attendance last night at the Halloween social and supper given at West Fifth street school by the school Mothers' club. Games, the fish pond and movies formed entertainment. Money raised will go into a general fund for making purchases for the school and helping the children. Mrs. William Smith, president, was general chairman.

POSTPONE AFFAIR.

The party planned by the Newman Mothers' club, and scheduled to be held today at the home of Mrs. Gordan Watson, Fifth avenue extension, has been postponed indefinitely.

ARRANGE FORUM

ASHLAND—The continuance of the Forum plan which has been successfully operated for the last two years will be recommended to the Y. M. C. A. board, members of the "Y" adult education committee decided at a meeting in the home of Dr. Charles L. Anspach Wednesday night.

The committee will recommend that this year the services of a group of Ashland Forum speakers be made available to community clubs, granges and church brotherhoods in Ashland county. The Forum was conducted at local P. T. A. meetings last year.

Watch This Campaign PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES IN HOT FIGHT

Michigan's Murphy Battles Former Governor Over
New Deal's Worth.

(Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of articles on important contests in state elections Nov. 8.)

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT — The governorship fight in Michigan—a state with two potential presidential candidates—has commanded the attention of national political leaders in both major parties.

Michigan Democrats are counting on electing Governor Frank Murphy to a second term.

Republicans predict former Gov.
Frank D. Fitzgerald will sweep the state, return it to Republican control, and place it squarely behind Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg as a possible 1940 presidential candidate.

Murphy a 'True Liberal.' Murphy, like Vandenberg, has been spoken of as presidential timber. The Michigan governor, a frequent visitor at the White House, has been described by President Roosevelt as a "true liberal." Vandenberg has advocated a coalition of Republicans and "Jeffersonian Democrats" to beat the New Deal.

Murphy, a former Detroit mayor, returned in 1936 from his post as American high commissioner to the Philippines and defeated Fitzgerald for the governorship. The great industrial strikes followed and Murphy was hailed by his friends as a master arbitrator. Murphy followers claim labor's support in the current contest. Fitzgerald has bid for the support of advocates of industrial peace urging creation of a state mediation board to arbitrate strikes.

Heavy Vote Indicated.
The red-haired, 45-year-old bachelor governor, citing huge grants in aid that the state has received from the Roosevelt administration, is urging Michigan to string along with the president.

Fitzgerald's recent reply was
"the voters and not President Roosevelt are going to dictate who shall be governor." Michigan election officials report huge increases in registrations and predict a record vote.

The bitter fight to return Michigan to the Republican side of the ledger where she was listed during most of her statehood, has been carried into the congressional districts. Neither Republican Senator Vandenberg nor Democratic Senator Prentiss Brown faces an election this year.

This series of articles will be resumed Monday, with a story on the Taft-Bulkeley battle in Ohio.

Speakers at the rally will be
Mrs. Robert Taft, who will be presented by Mrs. Gertrude Jones of of this district, and ex-Senator John Edward of Columbus.

OHIO THEATER INSTALLS NEW SOUND SYSTEM COSTING $4,000

Patrons of the Ohio theater may now hear a high lyric soprano voice without getting goose pimples and may even catch the deep true notes of the bassoon which have hitherto sounded like a rumble in the basement.
An entire new sound system has been installed, together with new projection equipment, an enlarged screen and public address system, costing more than $4,000.

The new RCA sound system consists of eight large amplifiers immediately back of the screen on the stage. Four of the units are for low frequency and catch every note in a medium and low register, while four are high frequency and carry extremely high, thin notes without vibration. The old sound system had only two units.
Instead of being mounted on a screen as it was formerly, the amplifying set is installed on a rolling platform and sets directly back of the screen.

The new screen is three feet larger than the old one and has a reflecting surface of 21 by 26 feet.
The two new projection machines which send the pictures to the screen and the sound to the horns back stage, are of the latest design.

The new system has a threeway hookup. The two large amplifiers at either side of the stage are connected with the projection booth, the manager's office, and a microphone on the stage.

About two weeks were required to install the new equipment. The greatest benefit, according to Manager Frank Harpster, will be noticed in musical films.

—Advice—
Cooking Can Make Marital Happiness

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.
One in a Series.

It still holds good, the magic of turning out a good meal is a substantial prop to matrimony. The nectar and ambrosia of the honeymoon having been consumed, it's now necessary to see what miracle the bride can work with the kitchen range.

What Makes Marriage Successful?

Although good cooks are born, anyone not an adept at the art of cooking can pick up the art by attending the cooking class in every school, community center and church extension, and with commercial products entreating you to accept a cook-book with their wares, with papers and magazines advertising they will tell you how to make the delicacies of all nations by enclosing a stamp or two, you are positively dared not to become a good cook.

It is possible to buy so many ready-to-serve commercial products today that a woman has to work hard to serve an unappetizing meal. She can buy the dough for pie-crust, biscuits, cake—only light bread defies the canners' art. Not that the habitual use of the can-opener is recommended, but it's undoubtedly a tremendous ally to the little woman's house-keeping.

All brides' schools teach cooking. The best of them, in New York, where a bride must enroll for a six months' course, teaches marketing as well. The agricultural department has compiled leaflets under the supervision of experts, telling how to prepare good and economical dishes.

You can get these publications for five cents by writing to the superintendent of documents, Government Printing office, Washington, D. C.

To make a genuine success of homemaking, a woman has got to put enthusiasm into the job. She has to understand that cooking is a fine art and not just something thrown into a frying pan or pot to boil. It's a curious commentary on the way women regard food that, while they have done the cooking down through the ages, men cooks have been the greater artists. We have had excellent women cooks, but the world's great chefs have all been men.

A stiff wire brush is a great aid in keeping the burners of a gas or an electric stove free from crumbs.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, October 29.

A VERY active state of affairs is forecast for this day, with unexpected events occurring. There may be revolutionary change, dramatic experience, romance or adventure of an unexpected nature. Or it might be a surprising intellectual adventure. But there may also be an estrangement, a bereavement, sorrow or illness.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves engulfed in a year of sudden events of a surprising or revolutionary character. Dramatic and thrilling occurrences of far-reaching effect on the destiny may be expected. At the same time, estrangements, bereavements, sorrow or affliction are foreshadowed.

A child born on this day may be talented in out-of-the-ordinary ways, being adventurous, romantic and original, as well as independent in thought and action. It may have a spectacular career.

Leftover cooked celery blends well with other vegetables for fritters. It is also good added to clam fritter batter.

Notes From a Model's Diary

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE
I BOOKED another wedding order today. This time it isn't a girl who is getting married, but a charming woman who has been a widow for a great many years. In fact, she married when she was 20 and was left a widow two years later with a little girl.

All these years she never remarried but devoted herself to bringing up her daughter. Well, last month the girl eloped, and now the man who has been adoring her mother all these years proposed. Everyone used to say that he was in love with the daughter, but I insisted that his interest had never wavered from the mother. I am sure the girl was a bit smitten with him, for he is tall, gray-haired and distinguished. He's brilliant, too, a very famous lawyer.

We were delighted when Mrs. S. telephoned us this morning that she would be in after lunch to discuss a wedding trousseau. Somehow, we all knew at once that she wasn't getting the trousseau for anyone else, but for herself. She came in after lunch, and Madame was waiting for her. She went into the office and drew up a rough outline of what should be one of the smartest trousseaus of the year, an ideal outfit for the smart matron.

Popular Shades.

The lovely shades that are so popular now, the rich plums and grape shades and purples, are just right for the mature gracious matron; that is, if she is slender and knows how to use make-up. Mrs. S. is very tall and slender and has beautiful white hair. She makes up beautifully, so we won't have to tactfully suggest a change of make-up.

Madame is going to make her some lovely hats, full of dignity and beauty, such as tricornes with lace veils draped in Venetian fashion, and smart berets of the profile type. I'm going to have one of the dresses and hats copied for my mother.

Cool evenings make a nice, comfy housecoat a necessity as well as a pleasure. Here is a beauty. It is fashioned of fine French flannel in cyclamen pink, with navy blue grosgrain ribbon at pockets, collar and cuffs. Navy zipper stops at a slit in the hem. Ball buttons on pockets, and an inverted flare from waist to hem in back are other details.

IT IS DANGEROUS business to ruff with the long trump hand, when the defenders have any appreciable number of trumps. If you shorten your own string too much, you may meet a shock upon finding one foe with all or nearly all of the missing trumps, possibly left with one more than your self or a higher one than your last one.

Dark green moire frock.

By VERA WINSTON

GREEN IS an added starter in the color race but it is doing all right. Smart women on both sides of the Atlantic are selecting green frocks for day, sports or evening wear. The model sketched above was seen at the Palm Beach Casino at Cannes on the French Riviera where some of the world's most fashionable women congregate. It is of dark green moire, a most popular fabric, with a band of black velvet covering the bust. The deep, round décolletage is outlined by wired black velvet leaves that frame the shoulders. The fitted mid-section dips down in back to a lower waistline and the skirt is gathered into it center back. The front gives the impression of being Empire.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable).

The bidding on this deal began with North calling 1-Club, which East over-called with 1-Spade. South put in a 2-Diamond bid, North 3-Clubs, South 3-Diamonds and North 5-Diamonds.

West laid down the spade A and, seeing the singleton in dummy, switched to the club 6. The 2 was played from dummy. East played the 7 and South ruffed. The spade 10 was then ruffed in dummy and a club ruffed in the South hand. Then a diamond was led to the A and to return to his hand declarer ruffed another club. When he played the diamonds K and Q he discovered that West was left with the high trump. As a result, South lost four more tricks.

Declarer lost the timing of the hand by ruffing the spade. He should have won the second trick with the diamond 4 and led to the diamond A. Then a second club ruff would have brought him to his hand to lead out the remaining trumps. With the club suit now set up after two leads of the suit, a heart to dummy's A would have allowed him to claim the remainder of the tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Sour Cream Pie, New, Different

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

HERE ARE some grand culinary suggestions and recipes, the first for sour cream pie.

As far as availability goes, the ingredients of this delicious dessert are as easy to get as the pie itself is easy to prepare. We can buy our sour cream all specially prepared and "soured" at the local store any time at all. Brazil nuts are available all the year round. So here goes for sour cream pie. Ingredients include one and one-half cups sour cream, two eggs, one cup sugar, one-quarter teaspoon cloves, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-quarter teaspoon nutmeg, two tablespoons flour, one-half cup chopped raisins, three-quarters cup chopped Brazil nuts, teaspoon vanilla and four tablespoons sugar. Scald one cup of cream in double boiler. Mix egg yolks, sugar, spices, flour and remaining cream and stir into hot mixture. Cook over hot water 15 minutes. Add raisins, one-half cup Brazil nuts and vanilla. When partly cooled, pour into a baked pie shell. Cover with a meringue made from stiffly-beaten egg whites and sugar, and the remaining nuts. Bake in slow oven 325° F. until meringue is browned.

Welcome Refreshment.

A cup of fragrant, steaming hot coffee and a nice piece of delicious homemade cake—that's just about one of the best pick-me-ups in the world, and an always welcome refreshment for guests.

So here are two delightful recipes for those of us who like to compliment our family and guests with cake made by our own fair hands!

Coffee cake calls for one cup strong cold coffee, one cup butter, two cups powdered sugar, four egg yolks, one-half cup chopped almonds, one cup grated chocolate, two cups flour, three teaspoons mixed spices, three teaspoons baking powder, four whites of eggs. Cream shortening and sugar till light. Add well-beaten yolks, then chocolate and coffee, alternately, with half of flour sifted with spices. Fold in beaten whites, add remainder of flour with nuts. Mix lightly. Pour into greased layer tin and bake in moderate oven 40 to 50 minutes. Spread layers and cover with coffee or mocha icing.

Caramel coffee cake, as good as its name, requires such ingredients as one and one-half cups flour, one and one-half teaspoons baking

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON
Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"IT ALL FITS in," I said at last, coming out of the tortuous maze of conjecture which had followed my discovery that the manager and the housekeeper of the Lansfield had gone stealthily to the suite occupied by Avis Arlen after my "kidnaping" of the girl and forcing from her a confession of her plot against Mary.

"What have you decided?" the nurse asked eagerly. Then she caught herself up.

"Please don't answer that if you don't want to," she said apologetically. "I don't want to be presumptuous, but I am terribly interested."

"You couldn't be presumptuous if you tried," I told her warmly. "And you surely are entitled to know everything that I know about this mess."

"Thank you," she said sincerely. "And I can see where you are right. If you don't mind my asking questions, I would like to get this thing straight in my mind so that I will be able to plan what I am going to do."

"Ask me anything you like," I told her heartily. "I shall be glad to answer, not only on your account, but my own. I am none too clear about the whole thing. Your questions may clarify things a bit."

Hasn't Decided.

"Well! In the first place," she began, "have you decided yet whether Miss Arlen was on her own or was really representing Mr. Veritzen?"

"No, I haven't," I said, "but I am afraid I am being hampered by my reluctance to believe Philip Veritzen could do anything so despicable to his own son's wife, whom he knows his son dearly loves."

"Has he ever done anything like this before," she asked practically. "I looked back over the years."

"Nothing that we could ever prove," I said truthfully. "Of course, we know that he tried to keep Noel from marrying Mary."

"How did he ever come to give his consent?" she asked. "Or is that irrelevant?"

I felt my face flushing at the memory of that old time when I had persuaded Philip Veritzen to give his reluctant consent to the marriage of Noel and Mary, and had insured his making over legally to Noel the boy's dead mother's bequest, which gave him small but secure financial independence of his father.

"It isn't irrelevant," I said, "but I don't think I have time to tell it to you now."

My Neighbor Says:

Water ferns grown in the house every other day giving them enough water to moisten but not soak the soil in the pot.

When you're through using the fat for deep-frying doughnuts or croquettes pour it through a clean cheese or muslin cloth which has been rinsed in cold water and placed over an empty tin can. This clears the fat so that it may be used again later. Store it in the refrigerator.

Try adding a top layer of sausages to your next escalloped tomatoes. Bake them for 30 minutes, being careful to season the tomatoes well. You may include boiled rice to the tomato mixture if you wish to provide a single main dish.

MME. QUI VIVE

One of the surprises of this day and age is the career woman who often works as hard as a hod carrier, yet puts up a glamorous appearance. One wonders about that.

First of all, she learns to work restfully, not to have brain storms or choke with bitter feelings. That's a deadly habit. Emotions wear us down more rapidly than work or long hours. She avoids strain and tension. She won't permit herself to get fussed. She realizes that that practice uses up more energy than hard labor.

Without fail she has her beautifying half hour before she goes to bed. She takes her bath then because she has more leisure for it. Before getting into the tub or under the shower, she clears away make up with cold cream, lets some remain on. She wipes it away later, puts in a tonic lotion to freshen the skin.

Her hair is groomed, her scalp frictioned—that takes only two or three minutes—her tresses are put to bed under a wave cap. Finger nails get an oiling—oh, yes! my lady, oil can be put atop the red glimmer and won't dull it. She gives the cuticle a brief massage so it won't dry out.

In the morning there is a cold shower, brisk rubdown. The face is freshened with cold water, laved with a tonic lotion, make up is applied leisurely. If possible, she takes a brisk walk on her way to work. If she isn't tired at night she does some torso twisting and stretches to keep muscles strong.

One soon learns by handling pots when managing house plants that if pots are light and plants are dry; if they are heavy, they may be left without water for a time.

Printers, Cafe Hold Spotlight

Roll Respective Totals of 2994, 2985 in B League; Aultman Leads Individuals With 677.

THE Mansfield Printers and Office Cafe held the spotlight in the Commercial B league at the Meder alleys last night.

Compiling games of 1058, 937 and 999, the Printers hit the 2994 figures, and the Cafe was right behind with a 2985 count, manufactured from tilts of 1046, 970 and 969. The two totals are the highest bowled in the league this season.

Incidentally, the two teams registered clean sweeps, the Printers taking three from Ohio Public Service and the Cafes added as many at the expense of the Burghard Cafe to remain in first place.

Chuck Aultman of the Cafe pounded out the top individual total with a 677, which included games of 239, 192 and 246. Heil-man paced the Printers with a

643, with Jones and Piller contributing respective totals of 617 and 606. Worman had a 511 for the O. P. S. clan.

The Satterlee Restaurants continued in second place by pounding out a 2852 total, which was good for two wins over the Heil-man Grocers. Johns led the Satterlee team with a 602.

In the other matches, Linster shot an even 600 to lead the Mansfield Rugs to a pair of wins over the Shelby Cycles, paced by Hazel-wood's 607, the Ringside Cafe won three from the Met's Auto

Supplies and Kochheiser Sports

won three from the Yunker

Sports.

ANGRY JUSTICE BLAMES RAID BY U.S. ON EMPLOYEE

Claims Search for Smuggled Goods Prompted by Maid Who Was Discharged.

(By United Press)
NEW YORK—Justice Edgar L. Lauer of the state supreme court said today the raid on his home by eight United States customs officers hunting for smuggled goods was the result of "an exaggerated and distorted story told by a discharged German maid." The maid was angry, he said, because Mrs. Lauer had expressed a dislike for Adolf Hitler.

The agents had ended a six-hour search of the Laue's Park avenue apartment last night and carried away four suitcases, refusing to say what was in them. They arrested Albert N. Chaperau, who was alleged to have visited the Laue's apartment Oct. 8, the day after he returned to this country on the Ile de France, and charged him with having taken nine pieces of luggage past customs officers without inspection by improperly claiming that he was the representative consul general of Nicaragua. The alleged smuggled articles were said to be clothing.

Once Paid $10,400.
Justice Lauer, who last October paid customs authorities $10,400 to settle claims against him and his wife for failure to declare articles brought into this country, said: "The maid apparently wishes revenge for her discharge and undoubtedly the trouble will be cleared, when the true facts are known."

Joseph L. Delaney, assistant United States attorney, who directed the search of the apartment, had an affidavit from Rosa Weber, who said she had been employed as a maid by Justice and Mrs. Lauer, and who swore that the Laue's went abroad in June, returned in September on the French liner Normandie with five trunks, the contents of which were put in a steel safe in a clothes closet of the apartment.

Mrs. Lauer said that trouble probably was the result of a dinner party she gave last week, which was attended by some Frenchmen and Russians who criticized Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain and Hitler in the presence of one of the maids.

Lucy Williams, maid for another family in the apartment building, said that a German man employed by the Laue's had told her she was going to inform federal agents on Mrs. Lauer because she had criticized Hitler.

Chaperau was held under $20,000 bond.

Justice Lauer was elected to the supreme court in 1913 on a Republican and Fusion ticket.

U. S. INDICTS 3 FROM MANSFIELD

Charged With Passing Bogus Bills by Grand Jury in Cleveland.

Three Mansfield men, arrested Sept. 11 by Detectives Lee J. Remy and Oscar Krupp, after several of the fake notes had made their appearance. They were turned over to the federal agents the following day and taken to Cleveland where they have been held in jail since.

Remy and Krupp said that Uznoff and Scoff had brought the counterfeit bills to Mansfield from another town and had been using Angelloff as a "tool" to cash the bills.

The three were arrested here Sept. 11 by Detectives Lee J. Remy and Oscar Krupp, after several of the fake notes had made their appearance. They were turned over to the federal agents the following day and taken to Cleveland where they have been held in jail since.

Remy and Krupp said that Uznoff and Scoff had brought the counterfeit bills to Mansfield from another town and had been using Angelloff as a "tool" to cash the bills.

The three made small purchases from several merchants, receiving change for the fake notes.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates, with Remy and Krupp were in Cleveland Wednesday to testify before the grand jury.

WEIGHS RULING

Juvenile Judge Takes Delinquency Case Under Adversity.

After hearing evidence in a case against Mrs. Nina Sweval of Lincoln Heights, who is accused of contributing to the delinquency of her three minor sons, Judge C. J. Anderson took the case under advisement in county juvenile court this afternoon.

Charges filed last July by neighbors of Mrs. Sweval accused her of permitting indecent behavior in the presence of her sons, the eldest 15, at parties at the Sweval home.

SHOOT'S DENTIST

Cleveland Assailant Takes Own Life After Gunfire.

CLEVELAND—Dr. Harold C. Wise, Cleveland dentist, was shot and seriously wounded in front of his office today by a man police identified as Sam Sanfilippo who then committed suicide.

Authorities said they were unable to learn immediately the motive for the shooting. Dr. Wise, wounded in the mouth and lung, staggered into a nearby grocery store and asked clerks to call police.

2 NEAR DEATH IN 2 CRASHES

8 Others Injured in Accident North of City in Which 3 Cars Figure.

10:15 p. m. at the intersection of Ashland road and Indiana avenue, in Lincoln Heights, was heard for a mile and brought several hundred persons rushing to the scene. Two ambulances made hurried trips to transport the injured to the hospital.

How Crash Occurred.
Kuhn's car, going northeast, collided head-on with the Baker machine, going in the opposite direction as Kuhn swung into the left hand lane of the three lane highway in an attempt to pass a third car driven by R. D. Stockdale of Ashland, State Highway Patrolman C. B. Tieben said.

Stockdale was in the center lane passing the car of Earl Leminger, Lincoln Heights, who was making a right turn into Indiana avenue, Tieben reported. The Stockdale and Leminger machines were also going northwest.

The Baker and Kuhn cars, after colliding, were thrown against Stockdale's car. The latter car was only slightly damaged and Stockdale himself was not injured. The Leminger car was not involved in the accident.

Both the Baker and Kuhn cars were practically demolished, and passengers in them were thrown against the windshields, according to investigating officers.

Baker and his wife, accompanied by his brother, Myrl, and Mr. and Mrs. Simons, his sister and brother-in-law, were enroute home from Cleveland where they had attended the showing of new model automobiles.

Riding with Kuhn were the Liston sisters and McKean, who were enroute to Ashland.

MAIL CARRIER STRUCK BY CAR

Treated at Hospital After Early Morning Traffic Accident.

A Mansfield postal carrier Paul Oakes, 217 Lexington avenue, was confined at his home today with injuries sustained when struck by an automobile as he crossed West Third street at Walnut at 5:50 a. m. today.

Police said Oakes was struck by a truck operated by Albert Waga, 81 North Weldon avenue, as the driver made a left turn onto West Third street from North Walnut. Waga told police that he did not see Oakes crossing the intersection. Oakes was treated at the hospital for lacerations and bruises and removed to his home.

DALADIER ENDS REVOLT, WEIGHS NEW ELECTIONS

French Premier Plans Series of Financial Decrees to Operate by Nov. 9.

(By International News Service)
MARSEILLE—Edouard Daladier, France's semi-dictator, crushed an incipient revolt in the radical Socialist party congress today, and decided to call new parliamentary elections next month if he finds it impossible to govern with a majority of the right and center.

Premier Daladier also planned a series of drastic financial decrees, which he expects to put into operation before Nov. 9.

The committee on general policy for the radical Socialists, second-largest party in parliament, drew up a motion of confidence in Daladier's government after severe difficulties between ex-premier Edouard Herriot and Daladier over the latter's drastic stand against the Communists.

Herriot Walks Out.
While Daladier is determined on a fresh alignment of the center and right, breaking up the "popular front" coalition which included the Communists, Herriot exhibited fear of burning the radical Socialist's bridges behind them. He twice walked out of the policy committee, but Daladier stood firm and finally won out.

The premier will risk a further test of his strength if the center-right government proves unworkable, by dissolving parliament when the emergency semi-dictatorial powers to rule France's economic and financial destiny bestowed on him by the chamber of deputies expire.

His new monetary measures, it was learned, will be put into effect following completion of the social decrees he outlined yesterday before the radical socialist congress.

It is understood the financial decrees will include revaluation of the gold stock of the Bank of France, requisition of gold and control of a central office controlling operations in foreign currencies.

In short, the decrees will place French economy under the definite form of state direction indicated in a speech Tuesday by Commerce Minister Rentin.

Added to this, Daladier already has junked his party's partnership with the Communists, thus wrecking the "popular front's" planned establishment of a policy of permanent friendship with Germany and Italy and indicated he will modify the 40-hour week.

NEWARK—(AP)—Ernest Jones, 53, dairyman, died today from gunshot wounds inflicted by his farm tenant, William Walker, 37, after an argument. Walker took his own life after shooting Jones.

6-MILE-A-MINUTE WARPLANE, U. S. BID FOR AIR SUPREMACY

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—A six-mile-a-minute war plane is the army's immediate answer to European rivalry for speed supremacy in the air.

Police, Armed To 'Teeth,' Discover Alarm's Mistake

The clang of a holdup alarm at police headquarters yesterday afternoon sent two police cruisers rushing to the Franklin Finance company, 54 West Third street.

First on the scene, less than two minutes after Deskman Claude Watts broadcast the alarm over the police radio, was Patrolman C. W. Kyler, who rammed the nose of his sub-machine gun through the door, closely followed by Patrolman Howard Schuck armed with a shotgun.

Bringing up the rear a few seconds later were Capt. T. M. Bell and Lieut. Bruce Friday, both with drawn revolvers.

With the place bristling with guns, L. B. Hamilton, the manager, explained to the officers that a visitor in his office had pushed one of the numerous alarm buttons, thinking it was a buzzer to summon employees in another part of the office. He assured them there was no hold-up.

The office was made holdup proof a few months ago with the installation of bulletproof glass and armored cashiers' cages following a robbery early in the year in which two gunmen made off with several hundred dollars.

from Dayton, O., to Buffalo, N. Y., yesterday by Lieut. Benjamin S. Kelsey lifted the wraps from a pursuit ship about which the air corps previously had little to say.

The plane, the Curtis P-37, already has passed the experimental stage. An initial squadron of 13 ordered last December soon will be delivered, officials said.

Without halting to gloat over the P-37, the army intends to announce in a few days another and presumably even faster plane. Designated the P-40, it is an experimental job, and most details will not be disclosed for the present.

Both Germany and Great Britain have combat planes for which they have boasted even greater speed than that attained by the P-37. But the air corps has a ready answer.

Lieutenant Kelsey's flight and earlier trials, which were kept secret, were made with full military equipment. Germany claimed some 380 miles an hour for its Messerschmitt, but reports here are that it was stripped for racing. Although Britain's Spitfire exceeded 400 miles an hour, it was aided by a 75-mile-tailwind, American officials contend.

Early today the navy's new $1,000,000 experimental bomber successfully completed a 14-hour, non-stop flight from San Diego, Calif., to the naval air station here.

Carrying a crew of 15, the huge craft is said to be capable of flying 4,000 miles without refueling.

GETS TREASURY POST

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt announced today that John W. Hanes, now assistant secretary, had been made under-secretary of the treasury.

AGREE ON PRICE FOR SCHOOL SITE

Board, Property Owner Reach Settlement on Lot for New Junior High.

The Mansfield board of education today completed an agreement with Ephraim Brown, Mansfield, for a property just west of the John Simpson Junior high school and ordered condemnation proceedings against the owners of an adjoining property unless the board's offer for the lot is accepted by Nov. 1.

The properties are needed to provide a site for the new John Simpson building which will be erected under the million dollar school building program.

Brown, who had refused the board's offer of $6,500 for the lot, agreed verbally to accept that amount if he is permitted to keep the house now on the property. The agreement was reached at a special meeting of the board at noon today.

The board increased its offer for an adjoining property from $8,500 to $8,888, and when Misses Bertha and Emma Reinwald, owners of the property, refused to accept that amount, the board authorized City Solicitor M. D. Ward, jr., to start court proceedings to acquire the lot.

A jury will be asked to determine the value of the land if the proceedings are carried out. Th Reinwald lot is 65 by 180 feet and the Brown property 60 by 180 feet.

Fare at Produce Markets Points to Holiday Season

Pointing directly to the holidays is the fare offered by food markets this week-end. New English walnuts, everbearing strawberries, pomgranites and dry figs and citron head the list of the new arrivals. Although it is late in the season there are still all varieties of grapes, peaches and Bartlett pears as well as plums for the autumn fruit baskets. Honey dew melons and pink seedless Texas grapefruit also are available. In addition to the usual crop of fresh root vegetables, there are Redeye potatoes, artichokes, onions, asparagus, endive, kale and ascarole, fresh tomatoes, lettuce and red and white cabbage.

For pies or the Halloween jack o'lantern, the markets have an abundance of pumpkins, and the shopper may choose from a variety of foods such as green, wax or lima beans, parsnips, brussels sprouts, broccoli, avocados, cauliflower and peppers.

Elementary school enrollment in the United States dropped 4.2 per cent between 1930 and 1936, and it is still going down, apparently due to a drop in the population of children under high school age.

Sophs, Juniors to Start Final Home Game Saturday

Red Birds Win, 14-7

Loudonville Scores Twice in Last Half to Turn Back Butler Bulldogs.

By CHARLES MARTIN
BUTLER—Loudonville high's Mid-State league footballers defeated a surprising Butler high combine, 14 to 7, in a thrill-packed non-league battle here yesterday.

Their running attack bridled by a hard-charging Bulldog forward wall in the opening half, the Red Birds pushed over two touchdowns in the final two periods to cop the contest.

Butler, showing improvement as the season advances, gave the heavier Loudonville machine a real going over before it bowed out of the picture.

Loudonville drove 50 yards for its initial touchdown in the third stanza with Glover climaxing the march by ploughing through center from the 10.

And then in the early minutes of the fourth stanza John Allerford scored the winning touchdown.

FORFEITS TO BELLVILLE

The Bellville-Ashley football game, scheduled at Ashley today, was forfeited by Ashley early today. Injuries suffered by several players and the Ashley coach, were responsible for the forfeit.

Trailing by a 14 to 0 count, the Bulldogs, fighting desperately to cross the Red Birds' goal, started heaving passes all over the gridiron. Kenny Miller furnished the spark for the losers' lone tally soon after Loudonville's final marker by tossing a 20-yard pass to Ward, who raced the remaining 20 yards into pay dirt. Larabee added the extra point on a plunge.

John Allerding and Etzweiler accounted for the Red Birds' extra points on line plunges.

Outside of Loudonville's two scoring opportunities, the Bulldogs held the upper hand. Three times in the opening half Butler penetrated deep into enemy territory but lacked the punch to push over a score.

Not once did the Red Birds move into Butler ground until they staged the first touchdown drive.

First Downs About Even.

The Red Birds chalked up 11 first downs to nine for Butler, seven of them coming in the final half.

Miller, pint-sized halfback, was Butler's principal ground gainer, reeling off yardage with ease on sweeps. John Allerding and Seigfried carried the brunt of the invader's attack.

A PREVIEW of the 1939 gridiron color bearers of Mansfield high school will be offered the Tygers' followers at 2:30 p. m. Saturday when Akron Kenmore sends its football forces to Stadium field to help Coach Russ Murphy's men close the home end of their schedule.

The identity of the starting lineup has not been revealed by Murphy, but none of the seniors will start, he emphasized.

Seniors to Be Ready.
How long the prospective 1939 Mansfield team will remain intact will depend entirely on the game, Murphy said. Senior regulars will be inserted if the task becomes too tough for the sophomores and juniors.

Murphy did the same thing against the Kenmore club in last year's game, but he was forced to substitute almost immediately when the Cardinals put across a touchdown in the opening minutes.

Kenmore's strength remains a question, but Murphy, with a weaker team than last year, expects more trouble than encountered in 1937.

The Tyger coach expects Lloyd Miller, Kenmore's sensational halfback, to be the visitors' chief menace, and the manner in which Mansfield stops him will probably tell the tale.

Saturday's game will mark the final appearance of 13 Tygers at Stadium field. The seniors are Capt. Rich Nagle, Al Schwane, Joe Lehr, Harold Gallagher, Grover Swower, Bill Condon, Ted Bush, Joe Cosentino, Harper Krupp, Dick McMillen, Bob Roth, Arl Williams and Bill Russell.

The Tygers will go into Saturday's game with Nagle, Schwane, Lehr, Gallagher and Russell on the bench. They are the regulars in the senior group.

Probable Starters.
Marshall Smith and probably Ed Kinkel will replace Nagle and Schwane in the starting backfield, Dick White will undoubtedly get the call at Gallagher's center post. Jack Schwartz at Lehr's tackle and Jack Dugger at Russell's end.

Howard Hershey and Ike Smith are the other backs slated to start against Kenmore.

Lugs the Leather for Cards

LYOYD MILLER . . . he'll face Tygers Saturday.

Shelby-Marion Game Features Tonight's Football Schedule

HEADLINING tonight's high school football schedule in the neighborhood is the tussle between the undefeated Shelby Whippies and Marion's once-defeated Presidents at Marion.

The game will have an important bearing on the N. C. O. conference title race as neither team has been beaten in championship competition.

In the only other conference game on tap this week, Ashland is host to Mt. Vernon Saturday afternoon.

Gallop goes to Rossford tonight for a non-league tilt.

In other night games tonight, Crestline entertains Marion St. Mary's and Bucyrus plays at Fremont.

CHAPTER 31.

The next day was the most dreadful jumble that Judy had known in all her variegated life. The dog had been sold, that was true. A girl had completed the transaction. She had been veiled heavily so no one knew her, but her hair was brown. The books showed the hour of the sale.

Judy had been free at that time because Mr. Boland and Abbey had been attending to some legal business. The boy from the dog farm, entirely unaccustomed to such mixups, was awkward and embarrassed. His employer was in Europe, he said.

Judy blamed Count Philippe. Why he should do such a stupid thing as steal Abbey's dog, unloved though the dog was, she did not know, unless the count needed immediate funds badly.

To Ronald Judy voiced her suspicion. He shook his head.

"No, the count wouldn't do that. Forgive Abbey, won't you Judy? She's almost under the weather with the strain of everything. She loved her dog."

"Sure she did. Like Austria loves Hitler!"

"Well, she hasn't had much time for him lately, I'll admit."

But Judy had taken all of that that she could. She stood up, slim and straight and defiant.

"Go ahead and defend her! Love her! Marry her! Live on her money! Be a man! A soft-spined creature who lost his way!"

She turned to leave but hands like a steel vise closed on her wrists.

"Judy, take back those words! You can't—mean them?"

She laughed, low and mockingly. "Sorry, Ronald, words are the only thing in life we can't take back! I do mean them!"

He dropped her wrists. He did not speak again as she left. But as she neared the door he said: "Wait, Judy."

She turned, eyes, hair, lips, flying upward in a swinging, winging fashion, eyes dark with hurt and anger.

He crossed to her. "Judy, I won't believe you meant what you said. You're hurt. You've been doubted and it never happened to you before. Some day you'll know it's all part of growing up. We'll laugh about it then."

"But you must accept Abbey's unjustified accusation as reasonable in her own sight. Where she pulled such an absurdity from, I don't know. But she believes it. You were free the afternoon he disappeared. You have brown hair and the dog seemed to know you. Don't you understand?"

"I understand that you are very very fond of Abbey. Good luck!"

Judy went to her room, ordered her trunk and bags, and began to pack. The very air suffocated her. She wanted to get away at once. She called the station. There was no train for two more hours. She would complete her packing by then and be waiting at the station.

That uncashed check from her father, and her salary from Abbey, unspent as yet, would stake her for several weeks. This time she was all right financially, until a job came. Any day she would hear about the sketches.

The last bag was packed. She ordered the station wagon, and stood by while the luggage was carried downstairs. She followed it. The driver went into the hall. She called him. He need not think he must consult Abbey.

"You may see Miss Boland when you return. I'll miss my train."

"But you have 40 minutes."

"I know—" Then she smiled. "I'd like to get away, that's all, right away."

"I don't blame you, miss. It's bad enough to get caught doing something without being innocent."

"Then you believe in me?"

"Yes, miss. All the servants do."

"Will you thank them for me?"

She wanted to cry. "I'll prove I didn't do it now."

"And you'll be back?"

"No, I'll not be back."

All the way down the winter road Judy lectured sternly to herself. Life was no bigger, no better than your understanding of it. Because Abbey was mistaken she, Judy Rogers, must not be petty. She must rise above it. She must reach the plane where she would not fear hurt, because she would have all that she needed within.

Like a warrior, accepting his accolade from his king, and turning to battle, Judy squared her shoulders. She was calm when the station wagon reached the low stone building that housed the waiting room. She was not perturbed when Count Philippe swung from the city train, his soft hat at a rakish angle.

"Leaving?" he asked, amused eyes surveying the luggage.

"No, just spending the day in town and I thought it would be nice to have my things along."

"Oh, yes, of course! It's such a convenience. You might want to change your dress or shoes, or read a good book—by the way, I owe you a copy of mine. I'll mail it. Where?"

The ruse to obtain her address did not work. "I don't know yet."

"You're going back?" The count was serious. "It's about the dog, I know. Abbey told me you would be pulling out."

"Prophetic of her. But who did take the dog?"

He shook his dark head. "I don't know. Couldn't anyone have done it?"

"No. He was—he is—a proud dog. He wouldn't go with anyone but a friend. I see you and Abbey have made up your small disagreement and are entering matrimony by the approved method."

"She sent for me. I think I'll enjoy being married to Abbey. I'm fond of her, of course. Besides, she'll grant me my freedom."

"It's nice to have people around you like — wives, secretaries, cooks, valets." Judy wrinkled her nose and laughed.

If Abbey had sent for the count,

she was putting Ronald aside definitely. It served him right! He had fallen from his white horse and he wouldn't ride so tall, so strong again at the head of his legion. She was fiercely glad. Then she remembered that she had decided to feel nothing. Whatever happened to Ronald could not concern her.

She was not the girl he wanted. Just the one on whom he hung a scrap of a dream last fall. She would be sufficient unto herself.

But the talkative count kept the station wagon waiting until the train came.

"Did you think I talked to you too much, Judy?" he asked. "Abbey resented it. She had a hunch you thought she shouldn't marry me—why, I don't know—I'm a bright person if the problem isn't hard but I can't solve that—and she thought you had some aspirations of your own."

"Of course, I told her that you wouldn't want a castle with bad plumbing unless you had money enough to repair it, which you haven't, and you wouldn't want a husband who loved another girl, as I love the sweet and gentle Abbey—"

"You're honest, but you're pretty much of a cad." Judy said without emotion. "Aren't you afraid this will carry back?"

"Not from you. From anyone else, yes."

The train came. The count swept his hat low over his heart as Judy glided away. She laughed. This was a musical comedy. It wasn't real. It had no sinew, no sturdiness. She was well rid of it. Only that accusation—

She went to a small, quiet hotel, unpacked, hung out her dresses, arranged her books and prints and lamps, and for the first time since that Monday morning when the sky had fallen and the stars had splintered, she felt at peace. It was strange. Here she was, accused of a theft, and she was singing in the shower!

She sat down at the desk to balance finances. Then she discovered she had left some things in the desk at the Boland estate. She must telephone at once. The housekeeper would send them to General Delivery. But the butler, on hearing her voice, said:

"We have an urgent call for you, Miss Rogers. The party number." (To Be Continued)
